Stifle Watergate Investigation

By NICHOLAS M. HORROCK

WASHINGTON. Oct. 15-Charles F. Ruff, the Watergate special prosecutor, has declined to begin an inquiry into whether President Ford, as a Congressman in 1972, sought to block an investigation of Watergate hy a committee of the House of Representatives at the behest of the Nixon White House.

The investigation proposed for the House Banking and Currency Committee in 1972 was not undertaken.

In a separate letter to Representative Elizabeth Holtzman, the Brooklyn Democrat, Mr. Ruff said that Watergate investigators had considered the question of efforts to manipulate legislative investigatious and determined that "there was insufficient likelihood" that corruption under the Federal legal definitions could be established.

Doesn't Plan to Seek Taxes

Mr. Ruff noted that the prosecutor's office had never sought White House tapes relevant to the investigation by the Banking and Currency Committee, which was headed by the late Representative Wright Patman, Democrat of Texas. He also told Mr. Conyers that he would not seek to listen to White House tapes of conversations between former President Nixon and Mr. Ford.

The Kansas Republican said that the American public that 1.6 million Americans and been killed should not be 'fooled" hy Democratic words, rhetoric and promises.

For his part, Mr. Mondale attempted to tie President Ford and Senator Dole not only to their records but also to the misdeeds of Richard M. Nixon. 'Defending The Past'

In a passage reminiscent of his mentor, Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, Mr. Mondale said of the Republicans: "They are defending the past. Everything is all right. The problems are not as bad as the statistics or as the people."

The two men, who have debated each other countless times on the Senate floor and in the Senate Finance Committee. took widely divergent approaches in their 1-hour 15-minute confrontation, which was televised nationally from the stage of Houston's Alley Theater.

After a mild beginning, Mr. Dole went to the attack, dropping barbed references ioto his rambling commentaries and continually ridiculing Mr. Carter, In the Representative John Conyers Jr., course of the evening, he also belittled al prosecutor said that "neither the Roosevelt and Mr. Mondale-both for his voting record and for his apparent nerv- been friends for years and would still ousness during the debate.

Party of Peace Again and again, Mr. Dole pictured the Republicans as the party of peace, alluding several times to the wounds he suffered as an infantryman during World War II. Peace, fiscal prudence and lotegrity, in fact, were his principal themes. Mr. Mondale, at various times, accused Mr. Ford of "one of the most outrageous statemeots" ever made by a President (his comments about freedom in Eastern Eur-

Why Yanks / Reds (PickOne) Will Win Series

BY MURRAY CHASS

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15-This Yankee team never has been in a World Series, but that doesn't mean the players will act as if they were a hunch of rookies just bappy to bave the chance to watch the hig bad Reds play in person. Even if they wanted to behave like that, Billy Martin wouldn't let them. .

Billy Martin doesn't carry a whip and he doesn't hit people over the head, hnt be has a way of making his players play his aggressive, hustling type of game. He has made the Yankees play it all season and he will make them play it in the next week. They're almost afraid not to.

That's one of the reasons the Yankees will dethrone the Reds as baseball's champions. It won't be an easy tasksome think it's a repetition of the Minute Men against the Redcoats-but they'll do it.

The Reds, everyone agrees, have power, speed and a solid lineup from ooe through eight (maybe nine with the addition of a designated hitter). They have Joe Morgan and Pete Rose and Johnny Bench and George Foster,

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15-Out here in Middle America along the banks of the Ohio River, the uncertainties of life and even of Presidential politics were yielding today to some sure things: Johnny Bencb's throwing arm, Joe Morgan's ahility to steal bases, George Foster's booming bat and the widespread notion that the Cincinnati Reds will train all these weapors on the New York Yankees in the Yorld Series, which opens here tomorrow at Riverfront Stadium,

As a result, the Yankees were aiready doomed, according to the Reds, their fans, the general public and even many nonpartisans who had just watched the Reds sweep to their fourth National League pennant in seven

"If we lose more than one game in the World Series," said Ray Shore, chief scout and supersleuth for the Reds, "I will be disappointed. In every category, we have the edge. We hit better, with more power; run better, field better. And in pitching, with Don Gullett as sound as he is, the worst we come off is at a standoff with New York."

Widespread Rumors Besmirching Carter Posed Problems in Ethics for News Media

By JOSEPH LELYVELD Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—Often it is difficult in political campaigna to tell the difference between a free-floating rumor and a deliberate smear. At the height of a Presidential campaign the difficulty can become acute, as a number of editors and reporters discovered in recent weeks when they ware confronted with a sudden rasb of sensational allegations about Jimmy Carter's personal life.

The allegations—at least, the fact of their existence-finally became public on Monday morning when Jack Anderson, the columnist, reported on the ABC tele-vision program "Good Morning America" that he bad been furnished by sources that he bad been furnished by sources in President Ford's campaign with the names of women who had supposedly been involved in extramarital affairs with the names of women who had supposedly been involved in extramarital affairs with the Democratic nominee. Mr. Anderson said that the allegations had collapsed under scrutiny.

The columnist's report furnished Mr. Carter with an occasion to go on the record with a denial of the allegations. which had spread, like ripples in water, through political and journalistic circles over a period of several weeks.
In that time, Mr. Carter's headquarters received a barrage of phone calls of gathering inteosity, not only from reporters but also from Democratic politicians and supporters who were reacting to gossip that the candidate's campaign was about to be taioted by sexual scandal.

Those are things he said about his allegations that had never been publicly aired had seemed out of the question because in the future."

According to Jody Powell, the caodiwith in diplomacy or again impose to spread by word of mouth, especially on the New York and Washington cock-taking office. tail circoits, the risk seemed to grow that they would finally find their way into print in a sensationalized form.

Journalists' Gossip

lrooically, it is clear that the stories were often spread as gossip in private conversations by journalists whose organizations had either decided that the allegations did not merit a serious report ing effort or discovered, after checking that the allegations were implausible. Incubated in this manner, allegations that appear to bave been deliberately planted with a handful of news organizations were finally known to nearly all who were seriously involved in national political reporting.

Dirty Tricks' or 'Cover-up'?

Some experienced investigative report-ers, who had been the recipients of tips that others were delving into the subject, felt they had reason to believe that those competitive pressures were being systematically manipulated by figures in or near the Ford campaign. Given the history of the "dirty tricks" operation in former President Richard M. Nixon's re-election campaign four years ago, these reporters saw the possibility of a legitimate story about the reappearance of similar tactics in 1976:

One problem was how to report this without dragging out unproved allega-tions about Mr. Carter's personal life and, finally, spreading them. A conflicting consideration was whether Mr. Carter bad not already made his own moral standlowa and returned to the lowa ards a subject of legitimate inquiry by campus for a meeting with mem-discussing them publicly in his celebrated.

"The ground rules in journalism have changed," commented John Herbers, an assistant national editor and former White House correspondent at The New York Times, "In the old days, everyone agreed that the best thing journalism could do about a whispering campaign was to ig-nore it. Now the same thing bappens and everyooe gets an enormous case of jit-

Long before last month, most major news organizations had closely checked into Mr. Carter's personal background, scrutinizing his finances and a variety of rumors floated by Georgia political sources that had an obvious hostility to the former Governor. As is only normal in malicious political gossip, some of the rumors carried innuendoes of sexual misconduct, nooe of which were found to be even superficially plausible.

These allegations reappeared, embellished with greater detail, shortly after the furor last mooth over the Playboy interview. In addition to Mr. Andersoo, Rowland Evans of the Evans and Novak column said he had been told at about the same time of supposed extramarital affairs involving Mr. Carter.

Mr. Evans, who refused to indicate whether his source had any connection

"We said it emphatically," Mr. Nelson declared. "We didn't say 'alleged.' We the allegations. knew it because they came to us." Nicholas M. Horrock, an investigative

The information was never forthcoming from that source but, once again, the reone thing I couldn't tell bim was the thing porter was prodded by a tip that others were working on the story.

When he made the call, Mr. Reasoner later said, he was not aware of Mr. Anderson's re-port, which had already heen presented on his network's morning program.

Denial by 'Truth Squad'

In fact, The Times had not been iovestigating the sexual innuendoes against Mr. Carter but rather the activities of a socalled "truth squad" financed by the Ford campaign, to discover whether it had beeo involved in spreading the allegations against Mr. Carter. Mr. Reasoner sald that his tip had come to him from an ABC reporter who had heard it from a reporter oo The Times.

Then, hefure about 2,500 people in Cohn Hall, Mr. Carter offered a long list of counterproposals and pledged himself, if he is elected, to a concerted effort to reduce crime in the country.

Two Administrations Criticized

With Senator Robert P. Griffin, the Michigan Republican, listening unobtrusively at the back of the room and taking nntes on an airplane ticket, Mr. Carter used some of the strongest language of his campaign to castigate President Ford and the anticrime efforts of his Administration and the "law-and-order promises" of his predecessnr, Mr. Nixon.

Mr. Carter charged that their lack of leadership across a hroad spectrum of Government responsibility had enriched the soil in which crime had grown so

As he has sn often before, he said that the Watergate scandals and the subsequent disclosure of irregularities in the ederal Bureau of Investigation and Internal Revenue Services were reflections of the Republicans' attitudes toward justice.

Making Ford the Issne

They have "tragically set an examplenot of respect for the law—but of viola-tion of the law," he said, citing the con-victions of John N. Mitcbell and Richard Kleindienst, both Attorneys General in the Nixon Administration.

Mr. Carter seemed intent on continuing his effort to persuade his listeners that Mr. Ford was the central issue of the 1976 campaign, a thesis he applied earlier today in his comments oo the President's televised oews conference in Washington last night.

In New York, where the Democratic candidate began bis day, be said that Mr. Ford had "ducked" and "failed to answer" many of the questions put to him particularly those pertaining to allega-tions by John W. Dean 3d, a former aide to Mr. Nixon, that Mr. Ford was part of a plan to abort a Watergete investiga-tion in 1972.

And, again, the former Governor of Georgia stressed the preponderance of disadvantaged Americans in jalls. "Poor people aren't the only ones to commit crimes, but they seem to be the only ones who go to prison," he said.

"The corporate criminal, the middle class criminal, the white-collar criminal too often get off with a slap on the wrist," he said. Mr. Carter said that if he were President he would remove the Attorney General, the F.B.I. and the I.R.S. from politics, appoint Federal judges and attorneys on a merit basis and "eliminate our double standard of justice: one for the average citizens who gn tn jail, the other for the big shot criminals who go free."

Introduced by Woodcock

Mr. Carter was introduced here in Detroit by Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Automobile Workers, and in turn, he recognized the gathering of Michigan Democrats, including former Gov. G. Mennen Williams, the last Democratic Governor of Michigan and now a justice on the State Supreme Court.

Mr. Carter was unaware of Senator Griffin's presence at the back of the cavernous hall, but the assistant minority leader was busily scribbling like a journalist as Mr. Carter spoke.

Not uncharacteristically, the Democratc candidate was far from a Demosthenes today, but the aggressive content of bis speech did prompt him to raise his voice to a level that was extraordinary for him.

As far as we can tell this is the first formal debate ever held hetween Vice-Presidential candidates. I also want to thank my many friends in Russell, Kan., for that big long telegram I received today. I think tonight may be sort of a fun evening. It's a very important evening; it's a very historic evening.

T've known my counterpart for some time, and we've been friends and we'll be friends when this debate is over and we'll be friends when the election is over and be'll still be in the Senate. And I think first of all I should make it very clear that I'm most proud to be on the ticket with President Ford. Praises for Ford Leadership

~I've known President Ford for 16 years-16 years. It'a a long time. He's known me for that long. I know him to be a man of compassion and competence. He has that confidence and he projects that leadership that America needs and that you need right now. I don't koow much about Governor Carter, I've tried to find out. I know lie's very ambitious. I know he wants to be President. He's been running for three years. But I know he said at least one thing-that he does agree with my opponent, my friend, Walter Mondale, one of the most liberal Senators in the United States Senate, And that's really what this debate's all about

. If by some tragic circumstance one of us should become President of the United States, where do we stand on the issues? I would just say in a very summary way that I have a great deal of faith in you, the American people. I'm concerned about farmers and bousewives and young people and professional people, working men and gomen. I think we can find our soluions working together.

My opponent has a record of voting My opponent has a recommending program except in defense, when he votes for every cut. And we'll explore that as this debate goes on.

MODERATOR: Thank you, Senator Dole. Senator Moodale, your opening tatement

MONDALE: I helieve that most Americans would agree on the problems that this country faces and which the next Administration must solve. They include the need once again for an economy that works. The economy today is in very, very bad shape—the highest unemployment since the Great Depression, 50 percent higher than when Mr. Ford took office; raging inflation, with the latest wholesale price igdexes once again raising the specter of double-digit inflation. The purchas-ing power of the average American has slipped so much that it is now the equivalent of the purchasing power in 1965. It is not getting better. It is getting worse. All the leading indicators now point downward, and atock investers are now losing confidence and over $50 billion of value has disappeared from the stock market in less han a month. We need a government that works, and we need a government that cares, and once again we have to get back to work on education, on health, on housing, on the environment, on energy; and we need a foreign policy that e again reflects the values and the beliefs of the American people. This will take leadership, and we need leadership, too. The Republican Administration, the Republican Party has had eight years to a solve these problems. All of them have gotten worse. The Republican ticket does not offer new plans for this solution but is engaged in a frantic effort to defend the past.

This nation desperately needs new leadership. The Carter-Mondale ticket would offer a new generation of leadership dedicated to solving the problems which I have listed, and that is the basis of our appeal.

Time for Closing Remark

MODERATOR: Thank you gentlemen. The subject matter of tonight's dehate, ike that of the first two Presidential oebates, covers domestic and economic policies and foreign and defense issues. The questioners tonight are Hai Bruno, chief political correspondent of Newsweek magazine; Marilyn Berger, White House correspondent of NBC News, and Walter Mears, special correspondent for The Associated Press.

Questions will be alternated hetween ting two candidates. After the question asked, the candidate will have up to Iwo and a half minutes to respond. His opponent will then have two and a half minutes to reply to that. The first candidate then may reply to those remarks for up to one minute. I should mention at this point that I will intervene if a candidate is not addressing the question which has been posed to

At the conclusion of the questioning, each candidate will be allowed up to three minutes for a closing remark. Senator Mondale and Senator Dole do not have prepared notes or comments with them this evening. However, they may make notes and refer to them during the debate. We now begin with questions on domestic and economic policies. The first question goes to Senator Dole, as was determined by the coin toss.

MODERATOR: The first question goes to Senator Dole as was determined by the coin toss. Mr. Bruno, you have the first question.

Q: Senator Dole Presidential candidates always promise that the Vice President will play ao important role. It aeldom turns ont that way and they usually wind up as standby equipment, which is the way Vice President Rockefeller ooce described the job. What's your view of this office that you're seeking? Has President Ford told you what your role might be, and what would you like it to be?

A: Well I said as I was traveling around the country, mostly in jest, as to why you are running for Vice President, I said, well, it's indoor work and no heavy lifting. But I've also thought very sariously about it, President Ford has discussed it with me. It's a great opportunity. It's a great responsibility.

Discussed Job With Ford I can't staod here tonight in Houston, Texas, and say that come January I'll be sworn in as Vice President that I'm going to do anything in the first hun-dred days, even the aecood hundred days. But I have discussed with Preaideot Ford. He's indicated two responsibilities that he's going to designate. One would be having some role in increasing our agriculture exports be-cause we believe and believe together that the future of American agriculture lies in its exports. Also, because of my long association with families who had their sons, bushands as missing in action during the war communicated to me last week that I had had the role of his representative and try to get some accounting of the missing action in Southeast Asia. But beyond that of course our constitutional duty is to preside over the Senate and vote in case of a tie. We also serve on the National Community Council, Domestic Council and whatever other assignments we may have from time to time. I think probably one important aspect we ought to talk about and that's our vision for America. I believe the people viewing tonight. people who are watching us tonight may well determine the role I play as Vice President. I believe that we're goiog forward in America under the leadership of President Ford and I believe there'll be more and more challenges, positive challenges to those of us who hold our office to serve the American people, and that's really what it's all about, Whether we're Vice President, on the City Council under the Legislature or whatever, Our obligation is to the people. We must have faith in the American people-more of that falth. And I think that the opponents have more falth in blgger government, more control and more interference with everyday lives.

MODERATOR: Seator Moodale, your response.

MONDALE: The problems that our country faces are so great that a very strong role is required of the Vice President and of all Federal officials. with Governor Carter and as Vice President I would have such a substantial role in both domestic and foreign

I would work with the President for example, in this long overdue effort to basically restructure and reorganize the Federal Government, Today it's a mess. There's oo one in charge. There's great waste, great duplication and the time has come for a long overdue reorganization. That would be one of the first tasks that I would have working with the new President. It would be a whole range of duties that I would have working with the President on problems of economic growth, how to get people back to work, attacking inflation and finally getting a policy to keep the dollar worth a dollar, and the other problems that we face here at bome.

Federal Task Force for Crime

One of the specific suggestions we are considering now is that I would head up the task force to deal with the Federal aspects of crime in America. Today the Federal sanctions in law enforcement is in disarray. The Drug Enforcement Admioistration is totally demoralized. The F.B.L is also under great difficulty. We need to have a coordinated, effective, and national attack on organized hard crime, those crimes prohibited by Federal law.

Wa need to finally get a national effort that really makes sense to stop the importation of these death—deal-ing imports of illegal drugs. We need to bave a new look at official lawless-ness at the Federal level because we've seen too many instances of peopla in high public office who violate the law themselves. And one of the thinga we're considering is establishing an in terdepartmental agency under the chairmanship of the Vice President to finally, at long last, put some strength hehind a national effort to deal with these terrible problems in American

Discusses Agriculture Dept.

And may I close hy saying that one of the reasons that I believe I am going to be the Vice President and one of the reasons that my opponent mentioned, and that is that the present President imposed an embargo on foreign exports four times in three years, and they want a change.

MODERATOR: Senator Dole, do you have a further comment?

DOLE: Well. I would just say to my good friend, I'm bappy that you're going to be responsible for reorganization. I hope you don't pattern it after Governor Carter's efforts in Georgia. They added more bureaucrats to the government io Georgia, the cost of government went up, his Human Resources Committee or wbatever it's called was called an organizational nightmare by Governor Busby, his successor. I understand from Bobby Smith, who's supposed to be the ag expert in the Carter campaign, that you're going to do away with the Department of Agriculture. That's in essence what be said. You're going to put it together with a lot of other things.

I know the farmers who may be viewing will he pleased to know that. They'll also be pleased to know that Senator Mondale sponsors export licensing proposals in the Congress, which would make it necessary for farmers to gat an export license hefore they could ship their goods overseas. And under his proposal—which is still pending, thank goodness, it hasn't passed or we'd all be in difficulty—we wouldn't be able to ship anything now.

MODERATOR: Miss Berger, your question to Senator Mondale.

Q: Senator Mondale, tha polls indi-cate that less than half of those eligible will vote in this comiog election. And although you and Senator Dole have both touched on the very important issues that are before the country, many Americans feel that they're being shortchanged hy a campaign that bas descended into a name-calling contest. For example, Governor Carter has said that President Ford has been brainwashed; President Ford says that Carter is slandering America.

If the tone of the campaign worries the electorate, does it worry your, Senator Mondale?

MONDALE: There are many things that I think have contributed to this phenomenon that I find very, very discouraging, and that is the great numbers of Americans who do not plan to participate in the electoral process which is ao crucial to a sound and effective nation. We can't solve our problems unless everyone helps.

There have heen so many things that have dispirited the American people that hava fed frustration and despair. We've gone through the worst war in American history, that's divided this country, perhaps just as much as it's ever been divided. We then went through the worst political scandal in American history, with the bighest officers in government being found guilty or at least charged with guilt in very serious crimes. We then saw evidence that even our own intelligence agencies and law enforcement agencies charged to enforce the law had themselves violated the law. And then we've seen a Government that is unable to deal with the real problems that the American people face. People need jobs. It's a tragedy every time an able-bodied American is denied the opportunity to work. There are now eight million Americans who can't find work.

Growinv Feeling of Disenchantment

It's a tragedy wheo Americans work . and find the value of their dollar disappearing. It's a tragedy when children can't get educated, wheo health care wipes them out, when senior citizens find that the attention and the credit that they're entitled to-to Social Security end Medicaid-is being taken from them. These things have all contributed to a growing feeling in America that gov-ernment does not respond to solve people's problems, that government lives by one standard and expects Americans to live by another, and because of that we have this large feeling in America, reflected in those surveys that were suggested in your question, that has contributed to this feeling that involvement in politics does not count.

And if there's one hope that Governor Carter and I have, if there's one objective that's central above all, it is that we can restore the faith in the American people by simply telling the truth, obeying the law, seeing problems as they really are, attacking the real questions, the real problems that affect America, and then I think we will see the restoration of public trust.

MODERATOR: Senator Dole, your re-

DOLE: I think it's a very good question. It goes back to the party institutions. Maybe it's an indictment io that sense of those of us who seek office. It goes back to my basic premise-and that's faith in the people. It just seems to me that some of those who lust for power are not really concerned about the people-they say they're concerned about the people, they talk about the people—they never give us a position—and so I think many Americans are sort of turned off, and they were turned off by the war in Southeast Asia. They were turned off by Watergate—I'll say that word first—they were turned off by Watergate. But we're lonking ahead. They were probably turned off by wbat they saw in the U.S. House of Representatives. They've been turned off by a lot of things they've seen in politics, and I think they've been turned off, too, by promises and promises, and bigger and bigger spending programs and more and more inflation. They're looking for leadership. They yearn for leadership, and they found that leadership in Presi-

And Governor Carter talked about tax reform, talked about taxing the rich. He talked about nearly everyone. He said former President Johnson lied and cheated and distorted the facts. I think that turned a lot of people off. Johnson. He insulted Governor Wallace, but he was quick to apologize to Governor Wallace. Someone in the family insulted Billy Graham but they were quick to apologize to Billy

I think it's time we stopped apologizing and talked to you, the American people. We need your help. We want to restore faith in this system and I think we can. Let's not promise what we can't deliver. Let's be bonest with you, the voter, with you, the taxpayer. Let's talk about education, more this, more that, and more that. With the 88 million people working America—they're going to pay the taxes—the highest number ever working in America-some 40 percent of the population. the highest in history, working now in America.

Concern for the Jobless

And we're concerned about the 7.8 percent unemployed. We'll be concerned until that's reduced to 4 percent or 3 percent or wherever. But we can't lose sight of the No. I enemy, and that enemy is infletion. And I think the American people are coming aroundthey're beginning to understand that President Ford says what be means and does whet he says.

MODERATOR: Senator Mondale. MONDALE: Well, who really has faith in the people? A candidate like Governor Carter, who campaigns with the people, who is out every day meeting and talking with the people, holds news conferences and answers questions of the news media as he has every day for 24 months, or a President who is in the White House, not through election hat through appointment, who has held only two pre-announced news con-ferences since February?

a story that 10 major corporations made massive amounts of money and didn't owe a dime in Federal tax.

Ford Motor Corporation earned $800 million and didn't owe a dime to the Federal Government; in fact got $180 million back. So between those tax cuts and between the massive costs of unemployment, they spend much more than we would. And what do they get for it? We want to see money sp to nelp problems that people really face in their lives.

MODERATOR: Senator Dole.

DOLE: Well, we're all for those programs. We just don't believe in excesses. I think in retrospect the elderly care program that I voted for instead of Medicare is probably a better program because under Medicare, everybody gets the benefits, whether you're in need or not, once you reach the age of 65. They're having a lot of problems with Medicare.

I'm glad you mentioned Ford Motor Company not paying taxes again. The Democrats control the committee. I'm on the committee. Senator Mondale's on the Finance Committee. Henry Ford happens to be supporting Governor Carter, maybe that's why. Governor Carter did have a little meeting with him at the "21," Club, had some small businessmen there, and said don't worry about taxes, I won't be doing anything for at least a year. That's after he said the tax system was a

We have peace in this country today. That's important to me and important to some others who may be listening. They talk about their full employment when we took over. That's because they had a full-grown war going in southeast Asia. That's not the way we try to end unemployment in the Republican Party.

MODERATOR: Mr. Bruno, your question to Senator Mondale.

Q: Senator Mondale, everyone seems to agree that solving the economic problems of inflation and unemployment hava to be given top priority. You and Governor Carter have a whole shopping list of things you want to do. After the economic problem, what do you see as the next most urgent and crucial domestic problem? In what order of importance would you go to work on such problems as the decay and bankruptcy of the cities, tax reform, health insurance, help to the poor and the elderly—in short, after the economy, what would be the very specific priorities of a Carter administration?

Do Something' in Health Crisis MONDALE: You have to work on several problems at once, because they all demand the attention of the Ameri-

One of the key problems would be to finally get a health insurance program to deal with the health crisis io America. In just the past two years, health costs in America have risen in the cities by over 25 percent. We have to do something about that. There's no hope under the Republican administration; Mr. Ford said be would veto any legislation if we sent it.

We have to do something about housing. We're in a housing depression. Today, nearly 20 percent of the huilding tradesmen in America are unemployed. We need to put them back to work-to build housing that Americans

We need to continue to huild support, as the budget permits, for education. We need to get back to work on the problems of senior citizens.

Dole, Ford Hit on Tax R

All of this has to be done prudently, within a budget, and within the constraints that our resources permit, but once we put people back to work, once we end this recession-which we will do-even the President's own estimates indicate that we will have somewhere between $60 and $70 billion of increased revenue on existing tax rates just from economic growth which we can use to work on these programs. Then we'll have tax reform, and I want to deal with this problem in just a moment. Mr. Dole has probably the worst record in favor of loopholes of any Senator in the United States Senate. Mr. Ford has one of the worst records in favor of tax loopholes in the bistory of the House of Representa-

I have one of the best records of tax reform in the United States Senate, and I find it very peculiar to find two people who spent their Congressional careers trying to block tax reform that permits very wealthy Americans to avoid most of their taxes to suddenly complain when the Congress hadn't passed the kind of legislation that we're talking about.

Leadership in the Presidency

What we're basically talking about ia Presidential leadership. We need leadership in the Presidency to help support those of us in the Congress that have been pushing for tax reform, and then we will bave it. It is now possible for people of great wealth, by using complete tax fictions, to avoid all or most of their taxes. But most Americans listening to me tonight could bire the best tax lawyer in America and you couldn't sava a dime. There are no loopholes for you.

MODERATOR: Senator Dole, your re-

DOLE: I think Senator Mondale is a little nervous, trying to make a loop-hole, I think, of Governor Carter. I don't know why it comes to me, but I remember his '75 tax return—you've probably seen it, it was published-his tax liabilty was $58,000.

Not many Americans—I don't imag-ine many of you in the viewing audience-had to worry about a $58,000 tax bill. I didn't. But Governor Carter did. He said he took off $41,000-that's all the investment tax credit. He bought some peanut machinery; he's going to use it next year. He took $41,000 off his tax and sent the Government a check for $17,000.

Jabs at Mondale's 'Ratings' How much did he pay on his income? Well, he paid about 12.8 percent. This is that same man, the same Governor Carter, who runs around the country talking about tax reform, loopholes and the rich I don't know who rates Senator Mondale in the Finance Committee. I don't know how they rated him on the Honeywell Amendment he offered and the I.D.F. Amendment he offered, and in the past it never got out of the Senwere his amendments.

OSenator Mondale, yon and Government of the Carter have made an issue of President Ford's statement that there is no with President domination of Eastern Europe. With Present that there is no with Present current domination of Eastern Europe. statement the President now says DOLE: 2 2 vas itt error, Td like to know whether here's any real difference between the wo tickets on Eastern Europe or vinether this is simply an effort by the Jemocrats to attract voters of Eastern uropean background. MONDALE Well, there are several Chena. i ings we'd do. First thing we would p is make clear consistently what the 78.11.173 icts are in Eastern Europe. The comrents the President made that Eastern -urone was independent and autononous from Soviet control is probably -ne of the most outrageous statement ade by a PrPesident in recent political story. It's caused great confusion in urope, Communist newspapers in Pond are praising the President because is statement helped give credibility Soviet control. I'm glad the Presi-ent finally apologized for that remark, but it's surprising that it took six days ad several attempts before we finally - ceived that apology.

What we think is needed in our polies with Eastern Europe is not to deal ith Eastern Europe as a bloc as does is administration. But to deal with sch country individually on its own directly and not through eviet Union to continue to identify Ith their aspirations for national indeindence, not because we are under y illusion about how easy it would No One's Entity as the nation white for us to ands for freedom and independence ith the aspirations of all people ound the world for those same objecres.

Secondly, we would push that part the Helsinki accord known as Basket tree, which requires much opening , much more opening up in people people contact and informational ntact. never met Mr. Solzhenitsyn and neither has Mr. Carter, Now I've had the privilege of meeting Mr. Solzhenitsynmaybe you've shook his hand somewhere-but I want to move into the Eastern Europe sector. I'm reminded of how the Berlin Wall went up and who was in power when it went up. I think if we take a hard look at President Ford's record rather than all the rhetoric that followed a mistake in the last debate about Poland, we would know very clearly where President Ford not only stands but has stood for 21 years.

Sees Trade as a Method

I think one way to let the people in Eastern Europe know of our concern is by trade. As President Ford said, ve never really given up hope. Their Government may be dominated, the leaders of that Government may be dominated by Soviet Russia, but the hearts and the minds of the Polish people, or the Yugoslavs or Rumanians, or the Czechs or whoever, have never een dominated.

And they're good customers. We have a favorable balance of trade with Eastern Europe. I think last year they eyported almost a half-billion dollars. worth of goods and material and we sent in about one hillion dollars' worth. I just wish Governor Carter had a foreign policy. He doesn't have any-doesn't have any experience.

He made some statement about Italy that bothers me because I was in World War II in Itely. My whole life changed because of my experience in Italy. I know the Italian people. I know they're God-fearing, freedom-loving people. I couldn't quite understand what Gov. Carter meant in Playboy Magazine-I couldn't understand frankly wby be was in Playboy Magazine but he was, and we'll give him the burnry vote. But I couldn't understand what he meant when he said that we ought to extend the hand of friendship to Communists in Portugal and the Governments of France and Italy, because by doing that he simply invites difficulties from Com-munist leaders in those countries.

Well, after all, we're strong, we're firm, President Ford understands, we're still at peace, we still have those same bopes and aspirations as the Eastern Europeans—and that's what it's all about—freedom peace, no bloodshed.

MODERATOR: Senator Mondale? MONDALE: I regret that Mr. Dole made that statement about Mr. Solzhenitsyn, because it's false: I've repeatedly spoken out in admiration of him. served on the host committee receiving Mr. Solzhenitsyn to the United States Senate. He's a man that deserves to behonored and it was a shame to me that the President of the United States, because we were fearful of offending the Soviet Union, failed to accord that high honor to Mr. Solzhenit-

I'm also sorry that he tried to misrepresent Governor Carter's position on the government that should control Portugal and Italy. The Governor made it very clear that he hoped the non-Communists would continue to control those countries.

The biggest thing that you're doing today that is undermining those forces of democracy is the disarray of our economy here at home. With our tremendous imemployment, with our tremendous inflation and the dominance of our economy, and the economies of Western Europe, Japen and Canada, we have contributed to such conditions that it has strengthened the radical forces in those countries. And that's what we need to do to best belp the democratic forces of those nations. MODERATOR: Thank you, Senator. We have reserved time this evening for questions on general subjects. The first question in this area is from Mr.

runo, and it is for Senator Dole. Q: Senator Dole, out there in the campaign trail you've been saying that Carter-Mondala Administration would take its orders from George Meany and the A.F.L.-C.LO. Yet Mr. Meany was among those who influenced President Ford on the grain em-bargo, which you personally opposed. bow do you know that Mr. Meany will influence Governor Carter any more than he already has inflnenced President Ford, and what, if anything, is wrong with labor or husiness or. farmers making their views known in the White House as long as it's done openly and honestly?

DOLE: Well I don't have any quarrel, first of all, with anybody making their views known. I wish more busine would participate in active politics. In fact, I've held up labor as an example, for others to follow because they are very active.

I just don't believe that labor leaders, whether it's Leonard Woodcock George Meany, Jerry Wurf, whoever ought to make a decision for thousands and millions of working men and women who are concerned about spending; they are concerned about taxes, they're concerned about the gun control that Mondale and Carter favor. They're concerned about abortion. They're concerned about a lot of things, and their labor leader makes the decision, "We're going to support the Cart-er-Mondala ticket."

George Meany did exercise some influence on the first embargo. I don't know how much because I wasn't privy to those meetings. He said he did it in the name of the consumer, when he really did it in the name of organized labor. He increased the shipping subsidies at the taxpayers' expense. Working with Mr. Gleason and the Longshoremen's Union they refused to load the ships, and it really put the President in a very difficult spot.

Embargoes Called Big Issue

As I think back of all the Democrat Senetors who are now talking about embargoes, I can only recall one who spoke out at the time. That was Senator George McGovern. He had no allegiance and owed nothing to Mr. Meany because, as you know, Meany didn't support him in 1972. Well, all of a sudden embargoes have cropped up as a great big issue. I know how much strength labor leaders have. I know how much they're out pushing voter registration, I know how much they control they have in the Democratic Party. And that's their right, to have influence, but not to take over the party. They have great influence on Senator Mondale, always have had. He's got a 95 percent labor rating.

the United States Senate, and that's his right. He wants to be liberal and spend your money and tax and tax and spend and spend. That's his right.

At first he was appointed as Attorney General, then appointed to the Senate. Some of us had to run for what we had. When you have had things given to you, you like to give something else to someone else. You give away your tax money back to the taxpayers. And I just think that George Meany has every right to have influence, but not domination of a great party like the Democratic Party.

MODERATOR:Senator Mondale

MONDALE: Well, there are many things that could be said about that might begin first with voting records. There are many organizations that prepare voting records. I'm pleased to have a very high rating in small business groups, among farmer groups—a much higher rating than my opponent the Senator from Kanas—good ratings, high ratings in housing, in health and education; good ratings from organizations deliver path exceptions. tions dealing with economic manage-ment—and I'm pleased by that But perhaps one that's most appropriate tomight is an independent dispassionate organization that represents the views of all Americans—conservatives, liberals, moderates, and so on—called the League of Women Voters.

For five years the league has prepared a list of the most crucial issues that they believe affect governmental effectiveness, that affect governmental bonesty, that affect dealing with America's real problems. And I'm proud of the fact that in each of those five years the League of Women Voters has rated me 100 percent in favor of every one of thosa issues that they, on an independent and a bipartisan basis, have believed to be the most important

And I note in that same record that my opponent was wrong half the time. He only was there 50 percent of the time. And I noted that the President of the United States, Mr. Ford, when he was in the Congress was right only percent of the time. And I think that says something about balance.

'We Are in the Mainstream'

We are in the mainstream of public life. We want to get along with business, we want to get along with farmers, we want to get along with labor. We think the President has to lead everyone. And that's the only way that a President can lead. This President and his running mate think they can get elected by whipping labor on the back Well labor's got a right to participate in the public life of this country as well as anyone else. Just take the embargo, for example. I was opposed, and said so at the time, of all the embargoes. The four imposed hy the Republicans and the short one imposed by members of the labor movement. thought it was wrong in both instances.

This particular ticket here strikes out Mr. Meany as the scapegoat. Well, you can't run this country trying to scapegoat Americans. You have to bring everybody together and hava a united country working together to solve our real problems. And that's another reason why we need Governor Carter.

MODERATOR: Senator Dole, any further response?

DOLE: What I would say as far as the League of Women Voters is con-cerned, you can look at that two ways either I was wrong half the time or they were wrong half the time. And I think, knowing the League of Women Voters, I think I'll take my interpreta-

Gives View on Right-to-Work Law

Now with reference to this, they tend to be a little bit liberal. Now George Meany, he wants the right-to-work law repealed in Texas, in my state. Senator Mondale's for the repeal of right-to-work laws. He wants to force you to join a labor union. Seventy-five percent of America's working men and women don't belong to labor unions, but they will if George Meany and Governor Carter and Senator Mondale have their They've also got some big proposi-tions out in California where organizers come on your property three hours a day and organize farmers, unionize farmers. Governor Carter's for that I assume Senator Mondala's for that Certainly Cesar Chavez is, and other labor leaders. I just say they ought to have influence; they shouldn't have

What about your national-security voting record? You get a zero every year, talking about our defense. MODERATOR: Thank you, Miss Berger, your question to Senator Mondale. Q: Senator Mondale, you've criticized Mr. Ford for ahving diffending Richard Nixon-that is, while Mr. Ford was Vice President—and you did see in your own political career that Humbert Humphrey suffered a great deal politically by standing with Lyndon Johnson almost to the end on Vietnam. And now you've acknowledged that you have differences with Governor Carter.

You've said that an important mark of national leadership is the ability to put loyalty to principle above loyalty to party, or even to the President of the United States. If push came to shove, would you put principle above loyalty to your running mate, and possibility to the President of the United States? And what issues are important enough to do that?

MONDALE: The answer is, yes I rould. But I would not have accepted a pace as the running mate of Gover-nor Carter if I thought that was a real possibility. We had a long talk about the problems of independence between the two, between the President and the Vice President. And I made it clear to him that I was not interested in serving in a role that wasceremonial or serving in a role where if I really felt deeply about something I was prevented from saying so. I did not want to go through that, I did not want to give up my position in the Senate where I have that right. Politics As Usual.

We agreed that that would be the relationship. And during this campaign on three separate occasions where I have disagreed with Mr. Carter I've said so in the course of this campaign. And I think the whole issue of public trust and public faith is bound up very had so much politics-as-usual, so much political trimming that Americans have lost faith in public leadership.

For example, in Watergate, when this nation's whole system of liberty was at stake and the Ervin Communities was established to investigate wrongdoing by the President of the United States. my opponent introduced a resolution to slam the door shut on the Ervin Committee so the people could not see and hear what was going on.

And the night of the Saturday Night Massacre, perhaps the most treacher-ous moment in the history of American liberty, when the high officers-Richardson and Ruckelshaus were fired for enforcing the law, fired by the President of the United States, both Mr. Ford and Mr. Dole stood up and defended Mr. Nixon.

And if Mr. Nixon had gotten away with that massacre that night he would probably still be President of the United States and we would not have tauht that crucial lesson thatg not even the highest officials in government can violate the law. Watergate Charges

Never again can we permit that kind of politics-above-all to dominate this country. Even today this Administration is fighting all the Watergate re-forms, opposed the appointment of a special prosecutor, opposed the reforms that cried out for adoption following the revelations of the abuse of the

C.L.A. and the F.B.L. And with a record like that, and with all of the abuse of public faith and trust that we've been through surely that, too, is another reason for a new generation of leadership.

MODERATOR: Senator Dole?

DOLE: Well, Watergate is a Republican problem, and I voted for the Watergate investigation. My opponent was abseit. We're all absent sometimes, but he's absent more than others. I think also it's well to point up that I did introduce a resolution to cut off the public hearings and to get down to business and get Watergate behind us. The Democrats didn't want to do that. They were baving great fun on TV every day and for a while they dinn't want to find a solution. I remember Senator Irvin's report, the chairman of the Watergate committee, and he said in that report, and I was chairman of the Republican Party during the Watergate years, and I'm very proud to have been chairman. I've always said that the night Watergate happened was my night off, so you can't hook me for that.

But Senator Irvin said had Senator Dole been in charge, there wouldn't have been a Watergate, so I don't want any rub-off from Senator Mondale's statement to any of you people to believe that he might be suggesting that somehow President Ford or Senator Dole was in any way involved in Watergate. We're not.

Democratic Control Cited

He hrings it up all the time, he hrings bring up the fact that he tried to extend the investigation of Watergate back into other areas that were voted down along straight party lines. That's their right. They control the Senate.

He doesn't bring up the fact that on the problems of the House Democrats L three Democrats to investigate the Democrats. Can you imagine the hue and cry in America had the Republicans done that? Why Mondale would have dropped dead.

And that's the way it's been—that's the way it's been. Watergate is our burden. We're going forward. It's behind us, and Governor Carter can talk about it and Senator Mondale can talk about it, but beyond that I think we must say as Senator Mondale has—I don't quarrel with him-that if there comes a time when I'm the Vice President and I can't agree with the President, then I must say so. I think that's fundamental

I think we're both honorable men I think we can both make that judg-ment. The only mystery to me is how do you know what Governor Cartes stands for? I've heen trying to find out for six weeks. He has three positions on everything—that's why they're hav-ing three TV depates.

I just suggest that maybe in the time remaining Senator Mondale can tell us what his running mate stands for. The American people would like to know.

MODERATOR: Senator Mondale. A: My candidate stands for jobs for all Americans. He stands for a Govern-ment that fights inflation. He stands for tax reforms and to take those revenues and reduce taxes for the average American. He stands for a program that at long last would solve the health crisis in America. He stands for at long last to get the bousing industry back on its feet. He will support programs to give senior citizens a decent break. He will not try, as Mr. Ford did, to put a cap on Social Security whose enior citizens were robbed of their inflationary adjustments. He will not destroy the housing programs for sen-ior citizens as this Republican Administration has done. Governor Carter stands for leadership. He's going to take charge. We need someone to lead this country. We haven't had it. Governor Carter will provide that leadership. And Governor Carter will restore to this nation a foreign policy that operates in the public and on the basis of the belief of the American people.

MODERATOR: Gentlemen, we have about five minutes left for short questions and short answers. Each sequence from now on will consist only of tha question, the answer and the other candidate's response. We'll drop the further response. The first question is from Mr. Mears to Senator Dole.

Q: Senator Dole, 10 days ago when Senator Mondale raised the issues of Watergate and the Nixon pardon, you called it the start of a campaign mudslinging. Two years ago when you were running for the Senate you said that the bardon was prematurely granted and that it was a mistake. You were quoted by The Kansas City Times as saying, "You can't ignore our tradition of equal application of the law." Did you approve of the Nixon pardon when President Ford granted it? Do you epprove of it now and, if the assue was fair game in your 1974 campaign in Kansas, why is it not an appropriate tonic now?

DOLE: It is an eppropriate topic, I guess, but it's not a very good issue any more than the war in Vietnam would be or World War II or World War I, or the war in Korea; all Democrat wars, all in this century.

I figured up the other day, if we added up the killed and wounded in Democrat wars in this century, it would be about 1.6 million Americans, enough to fill the city of Detroit.

Nixon Pardon Behind Us'

If we want to go back and rake that over and over and over, we can do that. I think Senator Mondale doesn't want to do that. And it seems to me that the pardon of Richard Nixon is behind us. Watergate is behind us. If we have this vision for Americans who are really concerned ebout those people out there and their problems, yes, and their education and their jobs, we ought to be talking about that.

I know it strikes a responsive chord in some to kick Richard Nixon around. don't know how long you can keep that up. How much mileage is there in someona who's been kicked, whose wife suffered a serious stroke, who's been disgraced in office and stepped down from that office. I think after two years and some months it's probably a dead issue.

But let them play that game, That's the only gama they know.

MODERATOR: Senator Mondale. MONDALE: I think Senator Dole has richly earned his reputation as hatchet man tonight hy implying and stating that World War II and the Korean War were Democratic wars. Does be really mean to suggest to the American people that there was a partisan difference over involvement in the war despite Nazi Germany. I don't think any reasonable American would accept that. Did he really mean to suggest it was only partisanship that got us into the war in Korea? Did he really mean to forget that part of the record where Mr. Nixon and the Republican Party wanted us to get involved earlier in the war in Vietnam, and long after Mr. Nixon and the Republican party promlsed to finish the war in Vietnam, they kept urging us forward, and that in fact it was the Democratic Congress that passed the law ending the war in Vietnam and preventing a new war

Now on Watergate, we are not charging, and be knows it, his involve-ment in Watergate, What we're saying is that they defended Mr. Nixon up to the last.

in Angola?

MODERATOR: Mr. Bruno, your question to Senator Mondale.

Q: Senator Mondale, you cited the priorities of the Carter Administration. At the same time Governor Carter has promised to balance the Federal budget within four years. Now can we take just one of those items that you gave very high priority to that would he very costly, our national health insurance? Now, realistically, what are the chances of getting this program in a Carter-Mondale Administration, or would it have to be postponed until the budget is halanced? Which comes MONDALE: Well, I think both the Presidential hudget and our estimates agree that if we move hack to full employment, as we intend to do, and achieve a 51/2 percent real growth rate, as we did uoder Truman, and as we did under Kennedy and Johnson, that within four years the revenues generaled by that growth, without increasing taxes, will pay for the cost of the programs now in place, such as Social Security, pensions and the rest, the ongoing programs that are essential in America-the defense program and the rest-and that we will have a full employment yield of somewhere between $70 and $80 hillions of dolltrs.

Would Work With Kennedy

Some of that can be used for tax relief and it should be. Some of it should be, however, used for programs that at long last start dealing with the real problems that America faces, such as health care.

There are many different versions of health care, but we would work closely with Senator Kennedy; with Paul Rogers and others to develop a health program.

Now there's no question about the difference in spending. The Republicans would spend more than we do during that same period but they would spend it first by $20 billion in tax relief for wealthy businessmen or wealthy corporations, and secondly by the continuation of these economic policies that are costing us over $50 billion a year. So the question is not spending, the question is the priorities. SENATOR DOLE:I want to remind those who may be still tuned in that the Democrats still control the Congress—they did when we started this debate an hour and 20 minutes ago and they still do by two-to-one margins almost, and they're reponsible for legis lation. I know Senator Long, the chairman of our finance committee, will be dale is going to agree now with Governor Carter Now if they're talking about full em-ployment they're talking about the Humprey-Hawkins Bill, which they support. They don't know what it costs— $20 billion? $40 billion? Or more? Another Government employment provery pleased to learn that Senator Mon-

I'd like to add up the number of jobs Senator Mondale has cost this country in defense plants, defense jobs, in all his anti-defense votes. It'd be hundreds and hundreds of thousands, and he knows it.

He'd have bigger welfare programs, higger giveaway programs. We want to take care of those out of work, we want to take care of those in need. Let's not wreck our business system, let's not wreck our free enterprise system just to prove a point.

MODERATOR: Theok you, Senators. That concludes the questions for this evening. Each candidate now has up to three minutes for a closing statement. By the coin toss, it wasdete rmined that Senator Dole would make the first opening statement and take the first question. He now also goes first with his closing statement. Senator Dole.

DOLE: Well, first I wish to thank the panel for their indulgence and of course all those in the viewing and ence who may still be with us.

I really hope, and I haven't prepared hope you were listening and we were able to tell you who is concerned about the American people, which party has faith in the American people, which party and which undidate wants bigger and bigger and higger government, which candidate wants more and more spending, more and more interference.

We added up five of the programs that Governor Carter and Mondale talk about—only five, they really want 60 some new programs in their platform or expanded programs—they want to create 22 new agencies, or expand that manay new agencies. We only added in five programs and the cost is $103 billion, $103 billion! That would cost every taxpayer in America several hundred dollars.

They don't care about inflation-the cruelest tax of all. And if you're in your living room watching tonight and you're making $6,000 a year on fixed income and there's a 6 percent inflation, that's $360 a year-$30 a month —that affects everybody in America. And add up your inflation if you let Carter and Mondale have their way. One spending program after another. Interest Payment Announcement

We're concerned about the poor. We're concerned about the sick. We're concerned about the disabled. We're concerned about those on Social Security. And we have programs for that.
We're concerned about housing—Caria Hills announced one today to reduce the interest payments from 8-1/2 to 8 percent on F.H.A. and V.A. homes.

Governor Carter wants to preclude you from taking off your interest, the mortgage interest as a tax deduction. He says nobody wants their taxes low-ered. Maybe not, if they're getting a $41,000 tax credit as he is.

I just say in my final minute it's great honor and a privilege to even be standing here—whatever happens Nov. 2-it's an honor and a privilegean bonor and a privilege to have known President Ford for 16 years, 16 years as I said at the outset. He's a man of unparalleled decency and honesty and courage; he's a man we can be proud of; he's going to give us that leadership, that America needs—ail America—white, black, Spanish-speaking, rich, poor.

Don't be fooled by the words, don't be fooled by the rhetoric, don't be fooled by the promises because somebody has to pay for those promises, i 'Only In America'

Just take a look at the leadership. Take a look at President Ford, and thank President Ford for the fact that we live in peace and freedom and your sons and your husbands and your relatives are home and they're safe. It could only happen in America. Thank you.

MODERATOR: Senator Mondale.

MONDALE: Americans are not interested in partisan debating points. They're not interested in how many debate points are scored. That means little to the lives Americans. What really counts is whether this country can begin to solve those problems that are overwhelming so many Americans-record unemployment -the highest since the Great Depression. and getting worse; ranaway inflationthree times worse than that onder the Democratic Party; deficits that are un-helievable. Just last year, under this Adall of the deficits created in the eight years of the Democratic administration, and under this Republican Party higher deficits than in the previous 192 years of this Government's history.

Now we recognize that you have to he prudent, that you have to live within a hudget, that you bave to deal with the resources that are at hand. There's no dispute on that. The question is how will those resources be used. And we believe that we need a government that works; that's efficient, but we also think we need a government that cares.

Lack of Caring Charged

We've cared too little for people in this country that have gotten sick and can't afford decent health care. We've cared too little for the thousands and thousands of American families that catinot get or afford decent bousing. This Administration has fought time and time again to cut back support for our senior citizens. They have no energy policy, they have no environmental policy. Those things must change. Wa believe in a strong defense. We're not going to let this nation's defenses drop. But there's big difference between waste and strength, and what we've been attacking is waste, because waste does not contribute to strength-it contributes to weakness. There are many problems in the Defense Department that require better management in order to get that increases strength.

We need leadership in this country to-do all of those things.

For eight years now the Republicans have controlled government. For eight years they've controlled the White House and every one of those problems has got ten worse. They are not now proposing new policies and new directions. Tonight you heard what they are doing. They are defending the past. Everything is all right. The problems are not as bad as the statistics or the people believe, and therefore they might go away.

A Cry for New Leadership

That is not enough. This country cries out for new leadership. We need a fresh start. And the Carter-Mondale ticket promises that start. Not because we know. all the answers-you know hetter. Not because we can do everything at oncebecause we know better than that. But because a good nation requires that we begin the effort.

MODERATOR: Thank you, S enator, Mondale and thank you, Senator Dole. I want to thank as well the audience here tonight and my colleagues who were our questioners.

The final debate in this series will be between the Presidential candidates: Gerald Ford and his challenger, Jimmy Carter. It will be held on Oct. 22 at 9:30 P.M. Eastern daylight time on the campus of William and Mary College in Williamsburg Virginia. The subject, matter will cover all issues.

Then, turning more serious, he called Mr. Mondale "probably the most liberal Senator in the United States: Senate" one who had "voted for every inflationary spending program except in defense, where he votes for cuts.

Senator Mondale went straight to the issue of the economy in his opening statement. There were, he said, high unemployment rates and "raging inflation" under the Republican Administration.

Points to Nation's Needs

What the country needs instead, Mr. war b Mondale declared, is an administration macy. Mondale declared, is an administration that concentrates on education, health, housing, environment, energy "and a foreign policy that reflects the values and the beliefs of the American people." and to try to obtain some accomming of servicemen missing in action or prisoners of war from the Vietnam conflict.

Senator Mondale said he had been promised "a substantial role" in both domestic and foreign policy. Specifically, he said he would work on restructuring the Federal Government and would head a task force on Federal actions to deal with crime and narcotics. Reasons for Apathy

The candidates were then asked whether they were bothered by the "tone" and "name-calling" of the Presidential campaign so far, and by polls showing that fewer than half the voters planned to cast ballots.

Both took the question as a chance to restate the basic campaign themes of the heads of their tickets.

Senaor Mondale attributed the public apathy to the war in Vietnam, the "worst apathy to the war in vietnam, the "worst political scandal in American history," disclosures about law-breaking by intelligence agencies, and a "growing feeling" that "goevnment responds to one standard and expects the people to live by another."

"We can restore faith in the American people," he declared, "by simply telling the truth, obeying the law, and seeing problems as they really are."

Turned Off by Promises'

Senator Dole called the public apathy an "indictment of those of us who seek office." The voters, he said, were "turned off by Watergate—Fill say that word first—turned off by promises, promises, and bigger and bigger spending programs."

The public is "looking for leadership, and they've found that leadership in President Ford." he declared. "Let's stoo prior debates between Senator Dole, who lingered on stage. Even Senator Dole, who debated Mr. Mondale for 75 minutes before hot television lights, was rubbing his hands. Senator Dole began his answer with the deadpan quip that "hindsight is pretty good, particularly when you're on the ticket." But he then went on to call the President "courageous" for hlocking popular but expensive legislation and once again chided Mr. Mondale for voting for spending more money.

Mr. Mondale listed the top-priority tems of a new Democratic Administration as national health insurance house ing, education and support for older citizens, He said both Mr. Ford and Mr. Dole had poor records as members of Congress in supporting tax reform.

Senator Dole was then asked how be

"I don't see any contradittion," he replied. "Anywhere you look, you find Henry's tracks, and they're tracks that are right for America, right for the free

But Senator Mondale said that the "key difference" between the two cam-paigns was that "we want a change of philosophy and direction." He offered sharply critical descriptions of the Ford Administration's policies in the Middle East, in Greece—where he said the Ad-ministration had "cozied up" to the former military dictatorships—and in Africa until, "on the eve of this election, sudderily we turned around." Points to Postwar Pacts

In his rebuttal, Senator Dole declared that "I'm thankful we have someone concerned about peace" in the White House, and referred to "the Democrats" ence over the Democratic tieket and its policies. The New Sport of Kings

By FRANCIS X. CLINES

Proud and calculating, the owners and hreeders of thoroughbred competi-tors convened Thursday night at the Lithuanian hall in Maspeth, Queens, for the great futurity race today—exactly 308.483 miles from Charlottesville, Va., to Joe LaRocca's loft, as the pigeon

All this morning they should be flying -1,500 pigeons bred and conditioned to be champions, flying the long coast course back to 200 lofts in the city, most of them on the flat roofs of Brooklyn and Queens, where the owners will be pacing and watching

Except for the absence of miniature jockeys to ride the backs of the cooleyed competitors, this could be the new sport of kings, with every man a king in the Lithuanian Hall as he carefully turned his bird over to the race officials and calibrated his own sealed time clock on the race's master timer.

The hall did not have the velvet ambiance of the Jockey Club, but the owner-breeders, wolfing down sand-wiches, coffee and beer showed the same camaraderie of precision-minded sportsmen. They discussed injured wing tips as if they were fetlocks and compared feed mixes calculated for the endurance factor of today's futurity, the higgest race of the year in the city for the new crop of youngsters.

The large field of assorted birds—silvers, blue bars, splashers, red checkers, all named according to markings—was assembled at birth, about eight months ago, when the owners registered them with the Brahmin-like associations that control the sport.

There was no 'hot hird," no extraordinary yearling cited in the pre-race gossip, so each man seemed separately op-timistic that all his special techniques and roofton vigils had given him the winner's edge. As the birds were handed over and banded, they were put in portable wooden cages for the late-night trip to Virginia on a special guarded truck.

As the handsome, submissive birds were gently tended by the callus hands of this obviously working men's gathering (no necktles, Windbreakers serving as this sport's blazer), the scene resembled a longshoremen's shape-up gone off on a Versailles dal-

The birds were as silent throughout as the breeders were not. "Hey Angie! What'd you get in that winning pool last month?" one owner asked a com-

Eight bills, not had," the man replied. This was an obvious reference to the side betting that some owners like to make, in this case an $800 pay-off. Race officials say that the trophy is the goal and that any betting is mini mal and solely among friends, which seems accurate because there were a great many friends in the hall.

The real joy, in any case, is rooted in the blood lines, muscle tone and spirit of the birds themselves. Harold Moskowitz makes this clear as he talks of his five decades of pigeon racing.

Forty years ago he bred a hot hird that took three races out of five, and extaordinary achievement considering the odds of competition and weather conditions that can see up to balf of a field never return from the longer 600-mile races...

"The expenditure of effort here is greater and more prolonged than in any other sport," said Mr. Moskowtiz, who has entered two birds, a hen and a cock, in this morning's race. There is Mabel, a "sensitive loving, conscientious hlue checker who has taken some diplomas—that's like finishing in the

The Los Angeles Times, the Democratic Presidential nominee said he had given little thought about whom he might appoint to key positions in his administration but indicated that he was ready to use members of his family as personal representatives and ad-visers.

He said that he would not hesitate to send his wife, Rosalyn, "to Mexico or South America or to Africa, if there was a problem there, to let folks know we care about them and to bring back to me a report on what we should do to correct a mistake or strengthen an alliance of friendship."

"And on domestic affairs," he continued, "among elderly people or concerning housing or health care, there couldn't be a better person upon whom could rely as an adviser."

The details of competition are fascinating. As the birds get near the loft, Mr. Moskowitz will send up a special pigeon—a chico—whose talent is in quickly attracting the competitors to roost so that no seconds will be lost in clocking the bird at the finish. Each owner has his loft surveyed in precise air miles from the main starting points down the coast used by pigeon com-

This establishes precise common courses, and the sealed time clocks complete the competition factors. A newly landed bird, exhausted and lean after the six to seven hour race this morning, will be quickly relieved of the band attached to his leg Thursday night, and the band will be inserted in the clock and registered.

The winning margin, established this afternoon at the Lithuanian Hall, can get down to a matter of seconds.

"The birds are just like humans," Mr. Moskowitz said. "You see the same anger, frustration, joy. I can tell you they even know when they are winners. You can see their pride as they strut around the loft." Pigeons typically choose one longterm mate, but Mr. Moskowitz says, here, too, they are only human and some cocks veer to several other parches. These are not your better racers," he said. "They are nice and easy going, it's true, but they are less inclined to exert themselves in competition."

Racing pigeons have nothing to do with their groundling relatives that beg in city streets, the breeders stress. A good Belgian stock pigeon sells for up to thousands of dollars. Michael Lagonmis just paid $2,000 for four pair of stock pigeons, and $1,500 for a custom foft in Corona, Queens, that has heat for the birds, and a telephone and refrigerator for the owner. Mr. Lagoumis was particularly watchful and respect-ful of the gathering at the Lithuanian Hall because he is not yet eligible to compete.

But next year he will have his own entries. He will put the best of them in the futurity and strive to see what winning is like in the world of rooftop thoroughbreds.

Opera: Lively, Logical Figure

Ginther Rennert's 11-month-old production of "Le Nozze di Figaro" returned to the Metropolitan Opera repertory Thursday night, and the result was a generally pleasing account of this most miraculous of operas.

This observer didn't see the opera at the Met last year, and so he can't compare the restaging of Phebe Berkowitz and Bruce Donnell with Mr. Rennert's original. On the whole, however, the direction Thursday looked both lively and logical.

There was an occasional unstylian exaggeration—an out-of-place cackle from Andrea Velis as Basilio, a rancous whistle or interpolated snort from Justimo Díaz as Figaro-and sometimes the action got too frenetic: while the fourth act has a clarity sometimes lacking in "Figuro" productions, Mr. Rennert rarely allows for the moments of repose built into the score. Still, this is a "Figaro" staging worth seeing. Too bad the same can't be said for Robert O'Hearn's grandiose, vulgar

Musically, this was a high-level affair, starting in the pit Leopold Hager, who was making his Met debut, was born in Salzburg and directs the Mo-zameum Orchestra there. It would thus be easy to expect an idiomatic command of Mozart style from him, except that such style doesn't always come by birthright. Mr. Hager has a genuinely relaxed, ingratiating way with this music, however. His isn't the kind of hard, angular Mozart that is popular today, but a gentler view, the attacks couched in a plush cushion of strings. Still, Mr. Hager knows by and large how to incorporate a good deal of subtlety and calculated eleverness into the ongoing line, such that he manages to sound simultaneously considerate of the singers and the composer, and his own man besides. The other debut of the night was Maria Ewing, as Cherubino. Miss Ewing, an American mezzo, moves pleasantly and confidently on stage, although her figure and manner are hardly boyish. She has a sweetly rich, womanly mezzo. At the moment some combination of nerves and artistic immaturity holds her Cherubino short of the very best. But she is a singer of enormous poten-

Three artists were singing their parts for the first time with the Met. Richard Stilwell may lack the bottom of the range and the ideal amplitude for the Count's music. have a purpose, but what is it?
The purpose is certainly not that of verisimilitude. The present writer has spent a number of summers in the vicinity of Cushing, Me., and can report that the landscape is often extremely vivid in its chromatic variety. There is almost nothing more visually delicious, for example, than the colors of the flowers that are everywhere that the colors of the flowers that are everywhere. observable in this area — colors that seem to attain a special intensity in the salt air of the seaside.

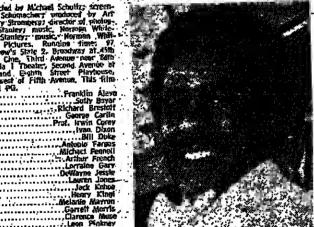

With such chromatic variety Mr. Wyeth's palette has nothing to do. He sticks to his brown-sauce view of the universe, whatever the subject or the light may be, and in the end we begin to wonder if there is not in this art a hidden scatological obsession. How else can one account for the excremental quality of this palette, which sensors ofu anything that might complicate its "earthy" view of nature and human experience? For this observer, anyway, Mr. Wyeth's visioo of both art and nature is an extremely depressing one. Everything about it—the hum-lile subjects, the proviocial and rightness-rings false. It all seems so drained of feeling, of real observation, of any involvement with the actualities of either life or art. I am reminded that there is a term for this sort of thing in the antiques business: people speak of "distressing" an object in order to give it the look f something old and authentic and venerable. Mr. Wyeth is the master of a pictorial counterpart-a master of the "distressed" rural scene.

Emerging from this phony at-mosphere, how grateful one was for the sun and the crowds on Fifth Avenuel Even the polluted air of Manhattan smelled a little sweeter after the visual murk of Mr. Wyeth's Cushing and Chadd's Ford evocations, and the hright yellow taxis loked as if Matisse had put them there.

Bot what do such judgements matter? Mr. Wyeth offers the world a dream that it cherishes-a pastoral alternative to what both art and life normally afford—and the world will beat a path to the door of whatever institution makes it available. It is available at the Met the commandant's overeducated offspring who is, of course, no match for the enlisted men. But "Car Wash," which opened at four theaters here yesterday, is more than an old comedy geure recycled. It's a terrifically shrewd piece of movie-making. Mr. Schumacher, Mr. Schultz and the members of the large, mostly black cast have created a cohesive comedy out of dozens of tiny pieces of narvatives and one out-standing "cameo." This is the ap-pearance of Richard Pryor as "Daddy" Rich, the founder-head of the Church of Divine Economic Spirituality, a fellow who drives a gold limousine with a license plate that spells T-I-T-H-E.

Some of the others who turn up in the course of the day are Lauren Jones as a down-on-herluck hooker with a sullen disposition and a different wig for every occasion, and Melanie Mayron, who plays the car-wash secretary, a moony young woman who spends more time on her nail polish than (Antonio Fargas), the on the accounts and who at one

"Car Wash" has the rhythm, beat and drive of the rock songs that are playing throughout the film, virtually non-stop, all reflecting a certain mindless contemporary mood without saying anything whatsoever about it if "Car Wash" makes no comment on our pop culture, it's because it's a piece of it.

The film, which has been rated PG ("Parental Guidance Sug-gested"), contains some mildly obscene words and rude gestures.

Miss Lee a Hit At the Waldorf

Peggy Lee's annual appearances in the Empire Room of the Wal-dorf Astoria Hotel are always somewhat of an adventure. There have been times when her per-formances there have been brilliant and others, such as the last two years, when, because of material, orchestrations or battles with the sound system, she has been surprisingly ineffective.

This year is one of her good vears-one of her very best, in fact. Everything - sound, orchestrations, programming, her voice —are under control and in balance. Looking slimmer and more relaxed than she has in several years, she is singing songs that, for the most part, do not pretend to be anything but good songs, songs that ride easily and smoothly on the low, throaty, shimmering tones of her voice. Miss Lee has managed some provocative, but unpretentious programming choices. A Rodgers and Hart melody, for example, includes,

HIGH POINT, N. C., Oct. 15 Gay 90's nostalgia has swept through fur-niture collections introduced this week at the Southern Furniture Market here. And some of the thousands of manufacturers and store buyers gathered for the semiannual showings view the weighty results—the rolltop desks and moustache shavings stands, the brass beds, fainting couches and player pianos as the biggst furniture fad to hit since Mediterranean flooded the market in the late 1960's.

At this show, nostalgia comes in many guises—all of them more or less historical, and most of them related to the turn-of-century "golden oak" genre. There are, for instance, spindleback chairs, lion's paw dining tables and wind up phonograph cabinets fitted not with Victrolas, but, you guessed it,

WHITE PLAINS—Ellen Altman was afraid to sit on a chair. So she perched on the living room steps of her split-level house in White Plains.

Hang it All had come. In two and a half hours the two Hang It All partwere to transform Mrs. Altman's home into something surprisingly new simply by rearranging the furniture and re-hanging all the pictures. "We don't redecorate," said Beatrice Feldman, one of the partners. "We create a fresh new look for people who don't know flow to go about it for themselves"-a seemingly ideal solution when furnishings are tired and money is tight. The cost is $50.

"And nothing ever goes away," added

Mrs. Feldman, the Mount Vernon decorator who started the service in the spring with Vivian Appel, a former schoolteacher from White Plains.

In one client's case, it all went on the wall. When the Hang It All partners entered they were met with an eyenumering accumulation applied helterskelter to the living room wall of every-thing from ceramic tiles to hunting guns. What the partners did was to break things up into categories. Two spears were moved to flanking sides of a hallway mirror. Commemorative plates were re-grouped over the dining room serving table. Watercolors and etchings were set in a design over the living room couch. An iron rooster was relocated in the kitchen. The end product was a display free of the former unsettling confusion. In some homes, when the clutter is simply 100 much to rearrange strrac-tively, the Hang It All partners will tactfully suggest that some of the items be put away.

Imbalance is another common fault. At one home, two coffee tables and a sectional sofa were crowded into one end of the living room; the other end was empty. The Hang It All partners carried one of the coffee tables into the dining room: It took on a new identity as a plant stand. The sectional sofa was formed into an L to divide the living room from the entry way. A bulky reclining chair, a natural for watching television, was banished to the upstairs den. The furniture that remained was balanced, useful and sp-oropriate.

At Mrs. Altman's house, two bright modern pictures were the first things that caught, and offended, Mrs. Feldman's eye. She held them up side by side instead of staggered across the dining area wall, then turned to face

"They look like soldiers marching."

Mrs. Feldman declared of the mixed green and yellow furniture Mrs. Altman had accumulated "little by little" over eight years of marriage.

Briskly, a round table with a chartreuse cloth was pushed in front of the window, A club chair and a bentwood rocker were whisked to either "Lines Follow Lines"

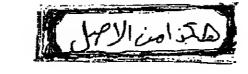

"Lines have to follow lines," Mrs. Feldman said, inching the couch, which jutted between the dining and living areas, to line up with the chintz-covered window frame.

Next she edged the class-topped cof-fee table into the middle of the living room, where it became decorative-and preferably empty. "I think they should be low," Mrs. Feldman said of the two bright modern pictures moving from the dining area to a small modern table against the wall. The middle of a pic-ture, she demonstrated, should be eyelevel—and better low than high: Finally, two green polkador-cushioned chairs were set facing each other across the small modern table. The "soldiers" had indeed broken ranks and the room had "opened out."

Mrs. Altman called Hang It All, she said, because there was no place for her to turn for professional advice. It was a question of "getting the most out of what I have and what I can do right now." She added of what had been "a fun day"—"It's incredible what I've learned."

It was I P.M. when the Hang It All partners came, and 2:15 when they stood near the stairs to leave, promis-ing to come back to hang the pictures. But they didn't go until they had of-fered one last bit of advice. Glancing through the open kitchen door, Mrs. Feidman said, "Change the red knobs to green on the kitchen cabinets and take down the washed-out weaving on

Only Woman Member Quits Cabinet in West Germany

The only woman in the West German Cabinet, Health Minister Katharina Focke, announced her resignation yesterday after four years. She had served earlier io the government of Willy Brandt and will retain her seat in Parliament. Mrs. Focke, who left Germany with her anti-Nazi family in World War II, studied in 1951-52 at the University of Oklahoma and has a Ph.D. in philoi-

Britain's Minister of Education, Shirley Williams, announced this week that, as a moderate in the Labor Party, she member, for the deputy leadership. The election to succeed Edward Short, who is retiring, could come next week. Mrs. Williams, 46 years old, spent the World War II years in this country.

As a "fighter for justice" and "friend of the Jewish people," the Rev. Edward H. Flannery received the Isaiah Award of the American Jewish Committee's Washington chapter Thursday, Father Flannery, 64, retired recently after 10 years as head of Catholic-Jewish relations for the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and is now with the diocese of his native Providence, R.I. In 1950-55 he was here as associate director of the Christophers and later was director of Judeo-Christian studies at Seton Hall University, South Orange, N.J.

Lee Goodwin, until July the State Commissioner of Housing and Com-munity Renewal, has joined the Wall Street concern of Huntoon, Paige Holding Corporation. She will handle liaison with municipalities seeking to refinance their indebtedness. Mrs. Goodwin, a 20-year veteran of state legislative and agency staff positions, left the com-missioner's job because she was dissatisfied with Governor Carey's handling of the long strike of tenants at Co-op City in the Bronx.

Sheila Macbeth Mitchell, an 86-year-old survivor of the 1916 sinking of the Britannic, has given up attempts to descend to the wreckage in the Aegean Sea with Jacques Constean, the under-water explorer. Miss Mitchell, who was a Britlan nurse on the World War I hospital ship, was the only survivor to answer a newspaper appeal by Mr. Cousteau, although only 21 of the 1,061 persons aboard 60 years ago were lost. Despite "days of valiant efforts," Miss Mitchell "never managed to get deeper than 150 feet in the bathyscape," a member of the Cousteau expedition said yesterday. She had to give up because of "insurmountable problems with breathing seasickness and physical movement." She walks with the aid of crutches.

The post of editor-in-chief at the Random House trade division will be taken over, with the title of editorial director, by Jason Epstein. He suc-ceeds James H. will continue as head of the paperback Vintage Books. He was a founder of The New York Review of Books and is a frequent contributor to it.

As a thank-you for Clamma Dale's 1975-76 year as an affiliate artist there, John Jay College of Criminal Justice will give a reception Monday for the mezzo-soprano, hailed for her portrayal of Bess in the current Broadway production of "Porgy and Bess." Noting yesterday that "there were some who had scoffed" at the notion of an affiliate artist at such a college, the acting president, Gerald W. Lynch, said Miss Dale had taught music to prisoners at Rikers Island as well as singing for all kinds of student and faculty events. "She reached into every fiber of the college and had a profound impact on al lof us," he said.

The family's yellow Rolls-Royce and the blue ooe, too, will go to George Hamilton, but the actor's wife, the former Alana Collins, wik get the white Rolls, a Los Angeles divorce court decided this week. Mrs. Hamilton was given custody of aheir 2-year-old son, $2,500 a month, the couple's home and $10,000 outright. Mr. Hamilton will keep his bank accounts and persocal title to his film rights.

Meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria yes-terday, directors of the American Cancer Society elected Dr. Lee Clark as its president. He is president of the University of Texas System's caocer center and of its M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute.

The latest edition of the Interne-tional Who's Who, with copies oow arriving here from Britain, reports that William E. Miller, the 1964 Republican Vice-Presidential candidate, died last April 13. "I think it's a little exaggerated," said Mr. Miller, reached yesterday at his Lockport, N.Y., country chib. It was not his first "identity problem." He was a relatively obscure Congress man when chosen by Senator Barry Goldwater as his running mate, was once barred from the White House by guards and has appeared in a credit-card commercial confessing that hardly anybody recognizes him by his face. Mr. Miller, a Buffalo lawyer, said there was oothing wrong with the rest of Who's Who's biographical data on him.

On the cover of the November issue of Esquire magazine will appear Play-hoy magazine's publisher, Hugh Hefner, holding a copy of Hustler magazine. Fully clothed and looking grimly puri-tanical, Mr. Hefoer is shown in connection with an article about "skio books" in his role as, according to Esquire, "the first legitimate magazine publisher" to start-with what now looks like caution—down that path. At Thursday night's meeting of the Amer-ican Society of Journalists and Authors, Arthur Kretchmer, editorial director of Playboy, reported receiving a call from his publisher soon after the Plains, Ga., interview that made news out of the word "lust." Said Mr. Hefner over the phone, "I hear you guys are doing a story on Jimmy Carter—do you think you have anything?"

Two of the undefeated and untied football teams that are ranked among the top five in the nation meet today. This is not a match between Michigan and Maryland, which were No. 1 and No. 5, respectively, in this week's Associsted Press major-college poll of sportswriters. The Wolverines and the Terrapins are not scheduled to meet Times season or any other season in the Today's oday's big showdown is between Post, ranked No. 1 in the nation and Division III small-college teams, and the United States Merchant Marine Reademy, rated fifth in this week's Diewision III poll. They will meet this atternoon at Tomb Memorial Field in Kings Point, L.I., before about 9.000 farts. And the Kings Point and Post rteams will approach the game in the any two undefeated and highly ranked teams would go into such a game-with just a hit of tenseness and considerable respect for the opponent. Fount, asked the American Broadcastlog Companies early in the week to have the big Long Island metch lele-rised ss a regional game of the week. After all, Kings Point is 4-0 on the season, and Post is 5-0. Rush was Torned down because the Alabama-Tennessee match, between teams with 3-2 Teories is a better New York attraction.

tion than a game between a couple of the Long Island neighbors. Or is it? Post and Kings Point have been tan-gling for years and have usually put On ac outstanding show. Last year, for instance, when Post lost only one game and Kings Point lost only two. Post won this one, 14-13. It may be some-thing like that again today, prohably assegame decided by the defense that the better job.

Two Good Defenses

"Each team has a fine defense. Coach Dom Anile's Post has the hig, strong. "physical" defensive unit. Rush's ath-letes are smaller but are uousually quick on defense Kiogs Point has tradi-tionally beeo a good defensive team. Post, always a high-scoring team under Anile, has its first outstanding defensive team in years.

John Mohring, a defensive end com-parable to Rutgers's Nate Toran, leads the Post defenses. Mike Toop and Brad Plowman, a couple of 195-pound linehackers, are typical, good performers for the Kings Point Mariners and just about as big as any of them.

Kings Point is also faster on offense, with little Paul Brown, the tailback, a threat as a runner and a pass receiver. Post has bigger and stronger but slower runners.

Bill Leete, coach at Hofstra, gives Post a slight edge. His team has lost to Post and must play Kings Point in two weeks.

Michigan Faces Northwestern

Meanwhile, that better-known team that is ranked No. I, Michigan, is virtually taking a day off. The Wolverines go against another Big Ten opponent, Northwestern, in Evanston, Ill. John Pont's Wildcats are going through the longest losing streak in Northwestern history. It has reached 11 games and is bound to reach an even dozen at the hands of the undefeated Wolver-

The No. 2-ranked major team, Pittsburgh, is also undefeated and untied. But the Panthers have problams. They have lost both of their good quarterbacks and may not he sure where to turn for help. With Robert Haygood and Mett Cavanaugh sidelined, Pitt has to go against Miami of Florida at Pitt Stadium with What's-His-Name at quarterback, Coach Johnny Majors isn't saying who it will be.

"I'm sure everyhody would like to know about tha quarterback situation," Majors said. "Well, so would I."

Seven days after Cavanaugh was sidelined with a broken bone in his left leg. Majors prohably knows who is starting for Pitt. He conducted closed practice sessions this week so Miami couldn't find out and so any plays inserted to make up for quarterbeck weaknesses could be kept secret. But Pitt still has to play the game with what it has, though it has plenty—Tony Dorsatt, for instance.

Ricky Bell Gets a Rest

Dorsett is within reach of Archie Griffin's career rushing record of S,177 yards, end the Pitt tailback has the sceee almost to himself today. His pri-mary rival for the 1976 Heisman Trophy so far, Ricky Bell of Southern California, will not be playing, because the Trojans have ao open date, Bell may need the rest after carrying SI times for 347 yards last Saturday in a triumph over Washington State. This Increased his lead among the nation's ballcarriers, giving him a per-gama average of 201.6 yards.

Miami of Florida, which has only one victory so far, will undoubtedly key its defenses on Dorsett today. But Majors said:

They can't afford to do that. That will hurt them. Maybe it will be good for us if they do." Pitt has other offensive weapons and may need every one of them, Maryland also has its problems with serious injury. Steve Atkins, the Terps' sophomore tailback, who ranks sixth in the nation in rushing, at 124.2 yards a game, is out with a knee injury. However, Maryland plays Wake Forest in an Atlantic Coast Conference match and should survive. Maybe Atkins will

COMMENT

Peacocks are flying with bright colors that should keep shioing today. Fordham's good running attack will have a Met. Conf. test lo this one. Montclair State is one of the leaders in the N. J. Coll. Athletic Conf. Colgate'a best in 24 years against 4 teama with total of one victory. Seton Hall just barely held on for a lie against Fordham last week, 22-22. Should decide Met chempionship and polot winner toward N.C.A.A. playoff.

again after upset loss to riomos St. If Cornell can heat Harvard maybe Big Red are threat for another upset. What happened to these last week proves all Is normal in Ivy League. The, Blue Hens ere pecking away at all of their major college opponents. Upset over Brown last week may bave turned thiogs around for Penn. Rutgers' 12-game winning streak on line against last team to beat Scarlet. Once an easy task for the Middies, this is not a breather this season. Revamped Penn State looked as if It found a way to score points last week. Desperate for a quarterback, Pitt is suddenly a team in senious trouble. Only sure thing about Ivy game this year is that it is unpredictable.

It seems as if the sting bas gooe out of these Tech Yellow Jackets. Blue Devils may be able to keep in running for A.C.C. dile in this game. Seminoles' victory over Boston College must cause Gators a little concern. Vandy is hardly type to band Georgia a second straight upset defeat. Wildcats and Tigers, surprisingly, are still in that mixed S.E.C. battle. Steve Atkins, the Terps' fine tailback, is out with a serious knee injury. Two teams doing rather well meet stroogest foe to date lo game today. Tar Heels doing well in A.C.C. but Wolfpack is a big disappointment. After the big upset over Georgia just what do the Rebels do to top that? Here's best ABC Sports could come up with for today's octione! TV game. Leamon Hall, with 1,336 yards passing, will be throwing in Superdome. Virginia Tech holds a 23-25-4 margin in this old Commonwealth series.

East Carolina ahould be able to get a game closer (o an undefeated season. Winner of this good match just mleht become a bowl candidate after loday. Hoosiers better enjoy this one because they have Michigan next week. Soooers and Jaybawks might settle top spot in Big Eight Cooference. Minnesota is atill hanging in their atop the Big Ten race with Michigao. Iowa State advertised for kickoff specialist in the local newspapers. Here's a fairly easy mark for the Corahuskers in the Big Eight struggle. No reasoo Northwestern should end the university's lougest losing atreak. The Irish never met Oregoo before but should be pleased with outcome. Nobody has quite figured out whiat has happened to Miami in 1976. The Cowboya are making threatening overtures toward the Big Eight title. Boilermakers and Illial must dream of day when Big Ten will be balanced. Buckeyes keep trying to keep the Big Ten as unbalaoced as this looks.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15—In a matchup that will mark the World Series debut of the nesignated hitter and the return of the New York Yankees, the Cincin-nati Reds will open the defense of their baseball championship tomorrow with Don Gullett pitching against Doyle

It will be the third time in the 73-year history of the Series that Cincinnati and New York have met, and their relations have been one-sided. In 1939, the Yankees of the Joe DiMaggio era swept four games from the Reds; in 1951,

But in 1964 the sun began setting on the Yankees' empire, and they had been out of postseason play for 11 years as they flew into town this afternoon after their tumultuous 7-6 victory over the Yankees of the Mickey Mantle era

the Kansas City Royals in the playoff for the American League pennant last night. The Reds, meanwhile, had grown into the powerhouse of the major leagues, with four National League pennants in seven years, one of which was won in a three-game sweep of the Philadelphia Philhes in their playoff concluded this week.

Starting Time Is 1 P.M.

The first team that wins four games will win the final prize of a hasehall season that began last April with legal disputes and bitter labor negotiations nver the players' moves to become free agents. They won that fight, and row the Reds and the Yankees will upen their fight for a purse that could total $20,000 a man and for the title that the Reds won last October, in a Series with the Boston Red Sox that lasted seven tingling games. Tomorrow's proceedings, in River-front Stadium will start at 1 o'clock before a canacity crowd of 52,000 people and a television audience that the National Broadcasting Company projects at 45 million, in New York, the game will be televised by Channels 4 ann 11 and oroadcast by radio stations WMCA and WCBS. All coverage begins at 1 P.M.

After that, the Series will pursue an irregular course, with the first Sun-day night game in its history because of the demands of television for primetime ratings, then three night games in Yankee Stadium starting Tuesday and finally two daylight games back in Cincinnati next weekend—if all that is needed to decide a winner. After the riotous events in Yankee Stadium last night, which were capped by Chris Chambliss's pennant-winning home run in the bottom of the ninth inning, few surprises seemed likely as the teams worked out on the artificial turf of the Reds' home park. But Manager Billy Martin of the Yankees sprang one nonetheless by nominating a pitcher who had watched the playoff from the bench and who had not worked in a game in three weeks.

Alexander is a 25-year-old righthander from Birmingham, Ala., who had pitched for the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Baltimore Orioles before switching to the Yankees last June 15 in a 10-player trade, one of the many deals made by the Yankees in recent

Assignment Surprises Alexander

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15-Three weeks after he last pitched and 10 weeks after he verbally clashed with the manager in a dugout, Doyle Alexander will start the Yankees' first World Series game in 12 years.

Billy Martin named Alexander today as his surprise choice for the Series opener against Cincinnati tomorrow. Martin also scheduled Catrish Hunter for Sunday night's second game, Dock Ellis for the first game to New York Tuesday night and Ed Figueroa for the fourth game Wednesday night. Alexander learned of his assignment shortly before the team left for Cincinnati. He and Martin were walking along a runway toward the clubhouse when Martin shocked the pitcher. "You're starting tomorrow," the man-eger said. "Me?" Alexander said. "You," Martin replied.

Little tn Choose

Actually, Martin didn't have much of a selection. Ellis cannot pitch effectively on three days' rest, Hunter would have had only two days' rest and Figueroa pitched the fifth playoff game last night. That brought Martin's choice down to Alexander and Ken Holtzman, and the manager apparently does not like the way Holtzman pitched for him this season. The left-hander, who had a 4-1 won-lost record in three World Series with the Oakland A's, didn't pitch in the playoffs and he might not get a start in the Series. "The Reds are high fastball hitters," Martin explained, "and Holtzman is a high fastball pitcher."

Why Alexander?

Motion Is a Factor

"He's an offspeed pitcher with a herky-jerky motion," Martin said, "Bepitching staff isn't the way I'd like to go. Doyle is capable of pitching a good game. I'm not worried about their lefthanded hitters. It's the right-handers we have to get out. A guy like Alexan-der, if he's sharp, can make it tough on them."

The 26-year-old right-hander basn't pitched since the day the Yankees clinched the Eastern Division championshin. He worked 51/3 innings in that game at Detroit, Sept. 25, allowing four earned runs and seven hits in a

"We got that worked out," ex-plained Alexander, who was acquired in a 10-player trade with the Orioles ao hour hefore the trading deadline June 15. "It wasn't a personality clash. It was something that happened. He still pitched me after that and I pitched good ball for him. We baven't had any problems since then."

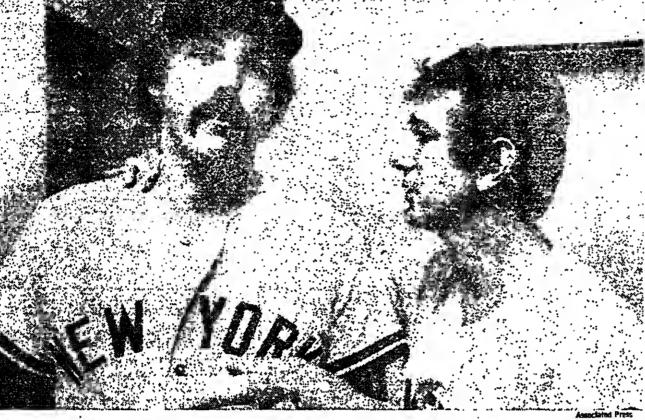

Several Near-Misses

Alexander had a string of near'odmitters in bis three starts just before that blowup. It had a no-hitter for eight innings egainst Boston, he had a no-hitter for 52/3 innings against Baltimore, and he had a perfect game going against Detroit for 62/3 innings. kees, he pitched seven perfect innings against Cleveland.

He finished the season with 10 victories, five defeats and a 3.29 earned-run average for the Yankees and a 13-9, 3.36 record overall. Alexander wasn't upset that Martin had overlooked him in the playoff. "He had guys he wanted to pitch and it didn't include me. We won, so it doesn't matter."

The Yankees beat the Kansas Gity Royals dramatically when Chris Cham-bliss hit Mark Littell's first pitch in the last half of the ninth inning over the right-center field fence.

Dave Anderson

Will Chris Chambliss Haunt the Reds?

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15-In his office at Riverfront Stadium today Sparky Anderson was on the phone, saying things like "we can power that guy" and "he likes the ball up" but never mentioning names. His conversation over, he slipped a red folder into the top drawer of his desk. The red folder contained the Ciliconnati Reds' scouring report on the New York Yankees for the World Series that opens here tomorrow. Sparky Anderson was not about to disclose any setch to Chris Chambles, amon "That guy's a tremendous hitter," the Reds' mnnager was saying, "but remember this — that bomer he hit don't go out of . here." The Times That homer, of course, merely won the American League pennant for the Yankees in a 7-6 victory over the Kansas City Royals. "That ball he hit for the homer is on the warning track here," Sparky Anderson continued. "That's an out here and [Hal] McRae ain't even jumpin' for it. Down our right-field line, there's a jet stream which you get about 40 feet out from the line and it's a long way. All those home runs the Yankees hit don't go out here except the one [Graig] Nettles hit in the upper deck in the Wednesday game.

That Controversial Trade

The word among baseball people is that Chris Chambliss fishes for the high inside pitch. But whatever the Reds' scouting report on him is, it's their second. On the edvice of Al Zarilla a scout, the Reds drafted Chris Chambliss as a teen-ager in 1967 and again in 1968 but be spurned them.

They offered $5,000 the first time and a little more than that the second time," the Yankee first baseman's father, the Rey. Carroll Chambliss, a Navy chaplain, recalled, "But he wanted to stay in school. He agreed with my thoughts that if he did well as a college ballplayer, he would have a better chance of being drafted in an early round. And when he hit 15 homers at U.C.L.A., that's the way it worked out."
But the Cleveland Indians, drafting ahead of the Reds in 1970, selected him and signed him for a $35,000 bonus. Then in 1974, the Indians traded him to the Yankees in a deal that developed because the Indians coveted Fritz Peterson and because Gabe Paul, the president of the Yankees, had been the Indians' general manager when Chris Chambliss was a minor leaguer.

"He came out of college," Gabe Paul remembered, "and he was supposed to go to Reno in the Class C California League but Ken Aspromonte, the manager at Wichita in the American Association, wanted him. He not only stuck there, he led the league in hitting. If you come out of college and lead a Triple-A league your first year, you can hit. And as that deal progressed, we were able to get the Indians to include him."

At that time, that trade was perhaps the most controversial the Yankees had ever made. Chris Chambliss was put down by some critics as a "big Matty Alou," meaning a spray hitter with no power. And some Yankee players were annoyed that Gabe Paul had traded their "friends" and destroyed the staff by swapping four pitchers—Petersoo, Steve Kline, Fred Beene and Tom Buskey—for Chambliss, Dick Tidrow and Cecil Upshaw.

But now only Buskey is still with the Indians; Peterson, now with the Texas Rangers, needs shoulder surgery; Kline and Beene are in the minors. Upshaw is gone but Tidrow, ited with the pennant-winning victory that Chris Chambliss produced. It wasn't baseball, it was theater-the most dramatic moment in New York baseball since Bobby Thomson hit his penoant-winning homer in 1951.

Theater won't win the World Series for the Yankees, but their pitching might. I like the Yankees in six games.

For the Yankees, theater is unusual. During their dynasty, they didn't need drama. They often had the pennant wrapped up by Labor Day and even in the World Series, they were more efficient than theatrical. Their memorable scenarios involve Babe Ruth "calling" his home run off Charley Root of the Chicago Cubs in the 1932 World Series and Don Larsen pitching his perfect game against the Brooklyn Dodgers in the 1956 World Series.

Theater was always for the Mets, and before that for the Giants and the Dodgers but now theater is part of the Yankees' image, too, for better or for worse, as the post-

Embarrassing, Not Beautiful

Jubilation is understandable, but jubilation must be controlled. When the Mets woo their pennant playoff with the Reds in 1973, they could not control the fans. And when Chris Chambliss nit his bome run, the Yankees could not control their fans. Hundreds had to get into the act, intimidating Chambliss into burrying to the safety of the dugout instead of stepping on home plate. He later had to be escorted out of the clubhouse in fulfill the formality.

It should have been a beautiful moment for New York, but instead it was embarrassing.

Nnt that the Yankee image should be as stuffy as it once was. But that stuffy image is safe. Of all the Yankees, perhaps Oscar Gamble put the new Yankee image in per-spective when he was being quizzed by Bob Sudyk of the Cleveland Press on the pride of the Yankees, as romantics like to call it. But remember that haseball players are not to be confused with baseball historians. Who was the Sultan of Swat?" Sudyk asked.

"The what?" Oscar Gambie said, shrugging.
"Who was the Iron Horse?" Sudyk asked and again, Oscar Gamble dldn't seem to know, so Sudyk tried a more recent nickname.

"Who." he asked, "was the Yankee Clipper?"
"George Steinbrenner," said Oscar Gambie with a smile.
"He made me cut my Afro."

Saban resigned today as head coach of the National Football League Buffalo Bills and Jim Ringo, an assistant whom Sahan hired in 1972, was named to replace him.

Ralph Wilson, the Bills' owner, said at a news conference that Saban would remain with the club in an "undisclosed capacity."

"We have not discussed it," he added. Eddie Cavanaugh, the special teams' coach last year and the team's pro scout this season, will he the new offensive line coach, Wilson said.

"Im still on the payroll," Saban said. However, he added, "I don't intend to leeve the coaching business. I'll take some time off and then go out and find another job." As for the current situation, he said,

"i'll do what I have to do to help the Saban said there was no one incident that caused him to resign, although he had reportedly been displeased with the

However, he added there bad been no contract discussions yet. Ringo, 43 years old, was hired by Sahan in 1972 as offensive line coach.

Wilson also said Saban was leaving the coaching position on "amicable terms," according to Bud Thalman, the Bills' vice president for public relations. Thalman said Sahan had met with Wilson this morning and "told Ralph he felt he could no longer coach the Series to heat Boston. That one-run dif-ference easily could have gone the Other way. Then how awesome and in-vincible would the Reds have been?

"The Yankees can match the Reds" power, they can match their speed. They may not have a player like Morgan who can dominate a game, but they have three players who can turn a game around as quickly as the Reds

... The three are Thurman Munson, Mickey Rivers and Chris Chambliss. Their names, along with those of Graig Nettles and Roy White, haven't become as familiar to the nation's baseball fans es the Reds' list of stars, but the lesserservided Yankees can steal bases, take the lang ball as effectively as the Reds.

The Reds are noted for taking extra isases. They have their own version of coy dolls—in this case the Morgan and Rose dolls. Wind them up and Morgan singles and Rose goes from first to third on the hit.

Yankee Outfield Fast

But the Yankees have fast outfielders who get to the ball quickly. They don't have outstanding throwing arms for the most part, but the faster they reach the bits the less chance there is of a runner taking an extra base.

Rivers has played such a hrilliant tenter field this season that he virtual-y; has eliminated the extra-base hit up the alleys in left-center and right-cen-ter. With his speed he even cuts off balls that bouoce more rapidly on artificial turf, a surface that the Yankees dealt with in Kansas City and should be able to bandle in Cincinnsti as well. As for the infield, Nettles has had few peers at third base this season. Fred Stanley is an underrated shortstop

Reds after 14 summers in a Cincinnati uniform, reduced the equation to the element of speed, and reasoned:

"Our job will be to keep Mickey Rivers off base. But, if it all comes down to a base-stealing Series, Joe Morgan will win, hands down."

And Alex Grammas, manager of the Milwaukee Brewers, who was a long-time coach for the Reds, said with no pangs of American League guilt, "The Yankees are a good team, but not in a class with the Reds."

Polemics aside, no baseball team in recent years has moved into a World Series with stronger credentials than the Mean Machine of Cincinnati-unless it was the Oakland A's, with three straight world championships earlier in this decade or the Yankees themselves, with five straight pennants in the previous dceade

The Reds won 108 games in 1975, then swept the playoff for the pennant from the Pittsburgh Pirates and finally defeated the Boston Red Sox in a rousing World Series. This season they won 102 games, swept the playoff from the Philadelphia Phillies and then rested on their considerable laurels, waiting for the Series to begin.

Gullett the Lone 'Stopper'

Their laurels include the following: the highest team batting average in the major leagues (.280); a lineup with five regulars over .300; an offense that scored 857 runs, or more than five a game; 210 stolen bases in 267 attempts; a team total of 141 home runs, and an experienced defense that committed less that one error a game.

If they have any weakness, most people think, it is their pitching. Besides whose range may not match Dave Coocepcion's but who makes few errors, and Willie Randolph covers as much of the area sround second base as just

Now that the Yankees have matched the Reds in power, speed and defense, there is one facet of New York's game that the Reds may not be able to match. That would be pitching . The Yankees had the hest pitching staff in the American League this season, one that's good enough to stifle the Reds' bats. And if the starters falter slightly, Martin has a strong, three-man relief crew in Sparky Lyle, Dick Tidrow and Grant Jackson.

Why should the pitchers he able to defuse the Reds' attack? Primarily because the Reds are a fasthall-hitting club and the Yankee starters, for the most-part, throw a lot of offspeed and hreaking pitches.

Alexander Has Variety

Doyle Alexander, for example, was selected by Martin to start the first game because he has a somewhat unusual motion and throws a variety of pitches at a variety of speeds. Catrish Hunter throws a good, though not overpowering, a fastball and throws it at different speeds. Ed Figueroa often tantalizes batters with an assortment of breaking balls.

The Reds are familiar with Hunter and with Dock Ellis, who probably throws consistently harder than any of the other Yaokee starters. But they don't know much about Figueroa and they haven't faced Alexander for five years, during which he's become a different and much better pitcher.

The championship formula could be this: Alexander befuddles the Reds in the opener and wins with late relief help from Lyle. Hunter goes out the second day, pitches one of his characteristically strong games, and the Yan-kees go home with a 2-0 lead. The Reds are so shocked that some upstart team has beaten them twice in their own park that they can't recover, not even well enough to enjoy the restaurants and theaters of New York, and certainly not well enough to win the Series.

three while struggling with a pinched nerve in his neck, they have no "stopper." Besides Gullett and Fred Norman, they have oo left-handed starting pitchers to challeoge the Yankees left-handed power. Nobody on the staff won more than 15 games, and the pitcher who won 15, Gary Nolan, also threw 28 home-run balls.

But Sparky Anderson, the manager of the Reds, clung to his well-documented platform;

"It's not a question of whether our pitching can stop them. It's a question of whether they, or anybody, can stop

The problem of stopping the Cincinnati Reds, other teams have learned, is essentially the problem of stopping a runaway offense with few flaws. From the top of their batting order to the bottom, especially with the designated-hitter rule added, they can hit and sprint, from Rose, a .323 leadoff switch-hitter, down to the No. 9 man, Cesar Geronimo, a .307 hitter who stole 22 bees mo, a .307 hitter who stole 22 bases in 27 attempts. It takes good arms to check this hunch-good pitching arms to keep them off hase, good catchers' arms to hold them on hase and good ontfield arms to prevent them from taking the extra base on a hit.

"We'll run all over Thurman Munson," predicted Shore, the scout and chief "doomsayer for the Reds. And they have no arms in the outfield at all, so we'll first-to-third them to death."

By contrast, the Reds are anchored on the field hy Bench, considered by many the finest catcher in the business. At 28 years of age, the winner of two awards as the most valuable player in the National League, Bench slumped this summer to a 234 batting average with 16 home runs and 74 runs batted in. But in the playoff, there he washitting the home run that tied the Phillies in the ninth inning of the final game. With the designated hitter in the World Series for the first time, Bench will hat seventh, and that may provide the best measure of the Red's depth.

For the Moment Is Favored at Belmont Today By MICHAEL STRAUSS

America's oldest stakes race for 2year-olds, the $125,000 added Champagne, occupies the features spot today at Belmont Park. A colt whose value is at least $1 million and another that cost only $17,500 as a yearling are the early choices in the field of 10 coits. The early favorite in the ooe-mile Race race is For the Moment for whom Gerald Robins paid $500,000 last mooth for a half share. The other half is owned hy the Waldemar Farm, where the fleet son of What A Pleasure was bred.

Occupying the prerace tole of a "poor cousio" is Karen Taylor's Seattle Slew, who raced for the first time late last month and has scored two successes to his credit.

In earnings, Seattle Slew rates a poor second to his highly regarded rival. For the Moment, who made his career debut last June, already has earned $107,553. Seattle Slew? His income so far is a mere $12,000. But based on his two performances this soo of Bold Reasoning appears to be headed for more purses.

"This guy is easy to handle," said Jean Cruguet, who guided Seattle Slew to both of his victories. "He likes to run. Perhaps he's not mature enough that to bear the forestic but he least yet to beat the favorite but he keeps improving. Mayhe he'll he improved enough hy tomorrow to give For the Moment trouble."

Legs Needed Developing

Cruguet explained that the Taylor color-hearer had been kept on the sidelines for most of this season in order to have his legs develop properly. "He was weak-legged as a yearling," said the French jockey. "His froot knees seemed to be a little bowlegged.

But those legs certainly seem in fine Eddie Maple, who has become For the Moment's regular rider, after looking over the Champagne's eotries, said he saw no reason why his mount wouldn't be able to gain his fifth straight victory.

"I know my colt hasn't gone a mile yet but oeither have any of the others," commeoted the Ohioan. "For the Mo-ment rates kindly. He's willing to lay off the pace until ready to be moved up ahead. He was widening his lead oear the finish io his last two races, both at seven furlongs."

Two Stakes Victories

Seattle Slew's credentials, it should he octed, are not nearly so impressive as those of For the Moment. The latter's last two successes were scored in stakes events—the Futurity and a division of the Cowdin. Seattle Slew along with five other starters today have yet to triumph in a stakes race.

Jorge Velasquez, who triumphed on four mounts in one day receptly, scored on three yesterday with a crowd of 13,173 in attendance. His triple in consecutive races, comprised Fleet Victress ($3.60), Alias Smith ($7.20) and Piamen ($5.40).

Peter Haughton was taken to River-side Rospital in Secaucus, N.J., with a possible brokeo collarbone following a six-horse collision to the sixth race last oight. Greg Wright, another leading driver, was shaken up but drove two races later. Haughton was unseated and throwo to the track when Kash and throwo to the track when Kash Minbar, driven hy John Schroeder, stepped into the wheel of Noble Tryst, handled hy Buddy Gilmour. Haughton, driving Savoir, was locked in behind the two. Dancing Party, Dream of Glory and Lola's Express and their drivers also went down. Quick Work and Japa finished 1, 2 hy avoiding the

Testimony Is Ended in Perez's Lawsuit Against Ali

Testimony ended yesterday in the four-day, multimillion-dollar court hattle hetween Muhammad All, the heavyweight champion, and a fight referee, Anthony Perez. The trial io United States District Court is expected to go to the jury of four women and two men on Monday after each side makes a summation and the judge issues instructions on the law to the jurors.

the Ali-Chuck Wepner fight in March

All countered with a $1 million claim that Perez had violated his duties as a referee by permitting Wepner to hit him constantly with rabbit and kidney punches during the 15-round bout won by Ali on a technical knockout.

The final witness, Jim Jacohs, a fight manager and vice president of Big Fights, Inc., testified he had oever seen such an "outlandish performance" by a referee than that of Perez in the Ali-Wepner fight. Jacobs, the only witness to testify for Ali, said, "I helieve it was a dishooest performance." He said he had the same opinion about Perez's performance in the 1974 Ali-Joe Frazier bout, which All won by a decision.

Ali testified on Wednesday that although he could not "point a finger" at anyone, he still helieved Perez coospired with underworld figures in the fights. He held fast to his belief that Perez had made a bet on Frazier, hut he conceded he had no proof. In his testimony on Tuesday, Perez denied he was ever paid off by gang-sters or that he had bet on Frazler. He said he overlooked many of the foul punches in the Ali-Wepner fight be-cause "both fighters were doing it."

Attorney General Robert 5hevin of Fiorida approved today a proposed pur-chase of Hialeah Park by the City of Hialeah, which plans to lease the horse-racing track to a husinessman. Noting tax revenues and tourism-that would be lost if Hialeah folds, Shevin said he saw nolegal obstacle to a deal in which the businessman, Joho Brunetti, would huy the park and tura-it over to the city. The city would then lease the track to Brunetti for 30 years and repay him $9 million of the $123 million purchase price sought by the current Hialeah Park owners.

23r- stopped a hiearly-eyed Walt Michaels in the corridor of the New York Jets training facility at Hofstra and tried to congratulate him on the way he has turned around the Jet defense in the last three weeks. Michaels, how-ever, wasn't ready to take any laurels

"Just wait nine more games and then we'll talk about it," said the man wbo fashioned the Jets' Super Bowl III defense that beld Baltimore scoreless until the last five minutes and who was hired as defeosive coordinator as the first priority move hy Lou Holtz, the rookie head coach. After going without a sack, and without an interception in their first two games while fosing to Cleveland, 38-17, and to Den-ter, 46-3, and allowing 25 of 31 suc-cessful third-down conversions, Holtz santed some changes made in his de-fense. Michaels is the man most responsible for the Jets' new 3-4 (three linemen, four linebackers) defense on cercalo obvious passing situations that was installed three games ago. The defensive hackfield was also realigned. Phil Wise moving from free safety to strong safety, Shafer Suggs, a rookie strong safety, to left cornerback, Burgess Owens from left cornerback to free safety. Ed Taylor, right corner-back, remains at that position.

And when the Jets go to four linehackers, three of them are rookies. Greg Buttle, the third-round pick out of Penn State; Bob Martin, a sixthround pick from Nebraska, and Larry Keller, from San Diego. The only sea-soned linebacker is John Ehersole, another Penn State product, playing tha middle because Steve Poole, a rookie, suffered a hamstring pull. There are also two rookies playing on the defensive line and doing a su-perb job. They are Lawrence Pillers. 11th-round draft choice from Alcorn State, and Larry Faulk, a seventhround pick from Penn State, playing for the injured Billy Newsome, who bas missed four games because of a knee

"As a former linebacker myself [with Green Bay in 1951 and Cleveland 1952-1961] my feelings have always been that linebackers are the key to any defense," says Michaels, a former fourtime all-pro linebacker with the Browns. After West's three-club pre-emptive bid, South balanced with three bearts and was raised to game. This seemed likely to end the auction, but East produced a bid of four spades that was more rash than brave. Wolfson blinked a little and doubled, counting his chickens, but West retreated to five clubs. This contract would have been doubled and defeated 800 points, but unfortunately for South, North persevered to five bearts.

The club king was led, and the de-clarer put up the ace from dummy, fearing the worst. The worst duly hap-pened. East ruffed and returned a spade for his partner to ruff. West played the club ten, encouraging his partner to ruff but not running any risk. East ruffed and returned another spade. West scored the fourth trick for the defense and East eventually scored the diamond king for down three.

The bidding had made it virtually certain that West held a void spade, and it was quite likely that be held eight clubs. Wolfson decided later that he might have tried the effect of duck-ing the opening clnb lead, and ducking again if the king won. This would save

Three Thrillers

By RICHARD LOCKE

CATCH A FALLING SPY, By Len Deighton.
268 pages, Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, $7.95.

THE SUN CHEMIST. By Lionel Davidson.
275 pages, Alfred A. Knopf, $7.95.

THE GLORY BOYS. By Gerald Seymour.
314 pages, Random House, $7.95.

There's so much talk about broken traditions and shattered styles up there in the cultural stratosphere, that it's fun to tumble off Parnassus, slide across the donkey's bridge and wallow about in entertainment. Like westerns and gangster films, today's spy novels and thrillers about international terrorism make breezy hack work of political reality. Such entertainments bog down only when they aspire to Art or grapple with Significance and beg for comparisons to Graham Greene or John le Carré. In the 14 years since his first and best spy novel, "The Ipcress File," Len Deighton has turned out 10 novels and story collections that have often hit the best-seller list. There was a Ken-nedy-cool amorality to "The Ipcress File," a cross of Hammett and cold war technocrat's lingo, but Mr. Delghton's recent books have been pale imitations. It's nice to report that his new one—"Catch a Falling Spy"—is a snort-rip-

Bright Snapshots

It's all plot, built for high-speed con-sumption. There are an real characters, just cartoons; the scenes are hright snapshots and the dialogue seldom more than tough-guy wisecracks twixt the two central heroes—a C.LA. honchn and a colorless, unnecessary Brit-ish narrator. The story involves a defecting Russian radio astronomer, a super-sexy redheaded lady spy, a corrupt electronics millionaire, a doughty English expert no Sahara driving an evil senator and his slimy chief assistant, and lots of on-location shots of North Africa, Mianu,

New York, rural Ireland, Paris and Berlin in 1955. The book is cbockablock with facts on cars, military hardware, astrophysics, the Moroccan phosphate industry, German syndicates buying Irish farms, and some neat tips nn skidding round hairpin turns in the Atlas mountains and shooting it out on the runway at Dulles airport. If you can swallow the cliches (they're as thick as gristle in a cheap meat pattie) the book goes by like a shot.
"The Sun Chemist" by Lionel Davidson is quite another dish of tea. Mr.

Davidson is a real writer, witty, graceful erudite in a wry light way (he's British but lives in Israel), with a gift for doinish characters caught in melodramatic situations, He's written five novels before this, of which "The Menorah Men" (about Biblical archeology) and "Smith's Gazelle" (about ethnology) were well-received in this country. "The Sun Chemist" is an alcountry. The Sun Chemist' is an altogether delightful entertainment: it traces an odd reference in a 1933 letter by Chaim Weizmann (first President by Chaim Weizmann (tirst President of Israel and also a research chemist) back to lab notes of 1904. crosses it with some of Weizmann's obscure last words in 1952, drops lots of false leads and hints about the chemistry of fermentation, and ties the whole thing into the oil crisis, industrial espionage (and murder), Nobel Prize cancer research, Israeli politics, and a playful sexuality among genuinely quick and flirtatious men and women (yes, women). Mr. Davidson has an original, very personal voice that you grow fond of as he scatters the details about organic chemistry and Weizmann's astonishing life with a bright dexterity and chal-lenging speed. He also knows how to deliver a climax, complete with a chase through the ruins of a Crusader's fort-ress at the edge of the sea. But the fun-

Shifts Around

If Mr. Deighton is all plot and Mr. Davidson is style and character, then Gerald Seymour—who did well with his first novel, "Harry's Game," last year—is nverreaching himself in trying for all three. "The Glory Boys" is an ambitious hunk of melodrama: an Arab terrorist teams up with an I.R.A. gumnan in assassinate an Israeli atom scientist in London. In a "Day of the Jackal" situation, a clutch of British Secret Service bureaucrats and a tough English marksman try to beat the fanatic lish marksman try to beat the fanatic left-wing killers. Mr. Seymour shifts from France to the Arabian desert to israel to England to a final shoot-out on the runway of London's Heathrow alroort. The characters' backgrounds, alroori. The characters' backgrounds, motives, ideologies are done to death; without a gift for anything beyond hland mid-Atlantic English, Mr. Seymour gets no depth for all his labor. He has a good journalist's energy (he's a BBC-TV reporter) and a skill at two-fisted construction; the book moves much better than most routine entertainments; and Mr. Seymour is cer-tainly serious, well-informed, earnest to provide value for money. He does that, but he's bardly the major figure claimed by many reviewers of the leaner, better-built "Harry's Game."

These entertainments won't shake you, enlighten the darkness or probe the depths; their right-winging politics is as rudimentary as cornflakes and as falsely satisfying. But unlike the ruck of best-seller candidates, these solid genre books deliver the goods-a touch of the social and economic texture be-hind the chattering headlines of Arahs, Israelis and airport violence. There's no short-weighting, oo sanitized name-dropping glamour porn. Pick your poi-son and enjoy it while it lasts.

The Economics of Inertia

President Ford, on the campaign trail, said this week that despite the "pause" that has lifted the unemployment rate and depressed the stock market, he doesn't see "any need for change in our economic policy."

This firmness in the face of adversity may have its virtues; but a bit of flexibility and "ertia" might be a good thing, too, in the presence of new and disturbing May, has gone back up to 7.8 percent. Inflation, which had looked as though it were declining to a pace of 4 fercent or so earlier in the year, has been showing signs of climbing back to the double-digit level. The wholesale price index rose at an annual rate of 10.8 percent h September—as did the relatively stable industrial-price component of the index. It may be that the Administration, as Mr. Ford says, "anticipated this pause after the first quarter," although it certainly did not go out of its way to advertise it. Mr. Ford's principal economic adviser, Alan Greenspan, in acknowledging the "pausa" six weeks ago, said that he expected it to give way to a "spurt" within a matter of weeks. That spurt has not materialized, and it now seems more probable that the economy will continue to grow at a rate of only about 5 percent during 1977. A majority of the National Association of Business Economists now expects a recession starting in 1978. Since the moderate rate of growth expected next year most effective response to illegal strikes. It is not, as teachers "the scapegoat" for other municipal workers.

.... Enforcement of law does not become vengeful because the imposed penalty is intended, in part, to "set an example." Municipal workers have readily resorted to iffegal strikes precisely because the city has in the past so often prevented the law from being enforced, by retroactively agreeing not to call a strike a strike.

These strikes, in turn, have become the tool with which to blackmail the city into settlements which eventually is unlikely to reduce unemployment much below 7 percent, this would mean entering a 1978 recession from a much higher base of joblessness than in earlier postwar business cycles. This would mean even more serious troubles for those workers who have borne the brunt of economic hardships in recent years. And it would spell even greater economic and social stress for the cities where unemployment is concentrated.

While joblessness becomes a way of life for many, inflation also grows increasingly imbedded in the national economy - through public and business expectations, the wage-price spiral, and a variety of priceratcheting or price-boosting activities of Government

Thus we are getting accustomed to inflation even in periods like the present time of sluggishness and underutilization of industrial capacity. If the economy were to he pushed hy highly stimulative fiscal and monetary policies up to levels of high employment and capacity use, more rapid inflation would take off from a much bigher inflationary base than used to exist after earlier periods of recession.

The chronic unemployment and chronic inflation that are now settling into the American system should not be complacently accepted as "normal" by Government, and they are not so accepted by the American people. What the nation wants are economic remedies, not inertia.

be agreed to the investment of over $1 billion of teachers' pension funds in Municipal Assistance Corporation bonds. The U.F.T. thus became a major force in saving the city from default, a rescue action that staved off disaster employees, including the teachers.

Such actions, bowever, cannot wipe out the record of past violation of the law or such strong-arm tactics as were used in the very strike that resulted in the suspension of check-off rights. That strike led to the tentative settlement, still not approved by the Emergency Financial Control Board, which clearly ignores the spirit of the wage freeze and forces the city's children to bear an inordinate part of the austerity burden. .

New York's schools urgently need protection from disproportionate cuts that undermine education. The teachers, who labor under most difficult conditions, will find it infinitely easier to gain the support of a concerned citizenry once their union is no longer perceived as a political force that considers itself above the law.

New Yankee Magic

Chris Chambliss supplied the lightning on the first pitch in the last of the ninth in the final game of the American League championship series. The Yankees won the game and their first American League pennant in 12 years. So the stadium exploded and a warm feeling of pride spread through the night to the rest of the city.

But any resemblance between this Yankee team and the dynasty from which it is descended is purely coincidental. Though the league's home-run champion is in the lineup, there is nothing lordly about these opportunistic speed freaks. Unlike the old Yankees, this championship was won by the most integrated squad in the majors. Its center fielder is not only a stately slugger but may be the most jittery lead-off man seen since Abner Doubleday invented the game. While Billy Martin's scrappy style of play seemed an aberration two decades back, he has made it the hallmark of the 1976 American League champions.

This summer's success has a number of sources: George Steinbrenner's money, Gabe Paul's genius, Martin's brains and the splendid blend of 25 highly talented athletes. It is wonderful to have the pennant flying up in the Bronx again and it was a thrilling game that put it there. Now, for those Reds . . .

Lebanon Climax Near?

A climax may finally be approaching in the long civil war that has devastated Lebanon for so many months at a cruel cost in human lives. Hopes for peace have so often been disappointed in the past that skepticism concerning the latest promise of an end to the fighting is understandable. Yet, some new elements in the picture suggest that the stage may be set for at least a temporary settlement in the near future.

The military situation within Lebanon supports the view that the present warfare cannot long continue. The Syrian Army's multi-pronged offensive is closing in on Yasir Arafat's guerrillas, and while the latter continue to resist fiercely, their losses have been heavy, Saudi Arabia's action in calling today's "mini-summit" in Riyadh of all leaders in, or affected by, the Lebanese fighting is a direct response to Mr. Arafat's plea to help stop "the massacre" of his forces. While Saudi Arabia's conservative rulers have little sympathy for Mr. Arafat and his Moscow connection, they cannot ignore his political power in the Arab world. Mr. Arafat, in turn, knows that Syria is more than ever dependent upon Saudi economic aid for its ambitious development plans. Mr. Arafat may have signaled the Saudis that his military losses have left him in a more conciliatory frame of mind.

As further indication of Mr. Arafat's decline, it is significant that the Lebanese delegate to the United Nations delivered this week an unprecedented attack against the Palestine Liberation Organization, publicly placing the full blame for his country's ordeal on the P.L.O. Thus, from the very rostrum where Yasir Arafat stood in seeming triumph only two years ago, he and his movement have now been denounced by an Arab delegate,

The world can only bope these latest developments may at last be signalling the beginning of an end to the terrible suffering of the Lebanese people.

Economy: The Governor's Advisers

I wish to address several points raised in your Oct. 6 editorial devoted to economic policy-making.

When Hugh Carey became Governor of New York his administration inberited a government that took the state's economic health for granted. Largely because there was no overall economic plan to assist him, the Governor, in consultation with the city, the Legislature and the private sector. sought to bring new ideas and insight to bear on a vast, difficult area concerning both state and city.

Thus, the cabinet-level group convened by the Governor performs the ordinary functions of government the internal coordination between state agencies and preparation of the Governor's legislative program-drawing heavily on the studies and experience of all boards and individuals who have freely given their time and talents to the economic problems of the city and

Any interpretation that this group has been given "primary responsibility" for economic policy-making decisions is not only inconsistent with the facts but a failure to recognize the enormous cootributions of many private citizens in the current formulation of public policy.

The Governor depends on the recommendations of all groups to guide him toward plans for action that are practical and that include effective fiscal social and economic initiatives. The Carey administration as well as these important bodies are, after all, devoted to the same overall objective: the revitalization of our state and our city's economy and well-being.

If Armories Became Day-Care Centers

To the Editor:

Nothing seems to prevail against our welfare problems. There are about 175.000 women with dependent children on welfare, about three quarters of a million women and children. This is the hard-core problem, discussed for a decade and studied ad nauseam. The overwhelming majority of these women say they would work if they had adequate day-care facilities, not filthy, fire-damaged buildings.

Well, those centers exist, under another name. We don't have to build them, they are safe and sanitary and have herthing, feeding and educational facilities. They are the fourteen armories scattered throughout Brooklyn, Bronx, Manhaitan and Queens. They were built to repress civil insurrection. We don't have much of that these days. lostead there are tennis nets strong in some of these armories.

Representatives Charles Rangel and Jack Murphy are anxious to create a program wherehy these armories can be used, utilizing the welfare mothers themselves to staff the facilities and simultaneously releasing tens of thousands of these women to seek jobs. The state militia, when asked about these facilities, indicated they would be unsuitable and implied that the idea was unthinkable.

Well, it's time this city and state started to think the unthinkable. More than 75 percent of those on welfare, are women with dependent children. We are talking in excess of a billiondollar millstone, and it's getting heavier every year. Let's heed the words of Issiah; Let's beat the swords into plowshares and the spears into pruning hooks and lift some of the welfare burden at the same time.

To Guard a Parade

To the Editor:

During the Columbus Day parade at 3:02 P.M. nice policemen were conducting traffic on 52d Street and Fifth Aveoue. Eleven policemen were stationed at 51st Street and Fifth-and so up and down the avenue. Our police force may be undermanned, but what strength there is, is surely misdirected. And why does the city continue to allow parades to strangle traffic on a business day? Henrietta Frank New York, Oct. 12, 1976

Unique Policemen

To the Editor:

Your Oct. S editorial, replete with customary righteousness, calls on police officers to make concessions commensurate with those made by other municipal workers. An objective analysis of the facts would reveal that the police officer is required by the very nature of his employment to make sacrifices not demanded of other city employees. There are few occupations which so stringently regulate the individual's private life and affairs as that of being a sworn member of the Police Department.

It can be argued with logic and reason that the nature of the task to be performed makes special regulations and restrictions necessary and desirable. Few people, and iodeed few police officers, would argue this point. The area of contention lies in what police officers see as an erosion of their position in society. They have seen others obtain benefits which they themselves were granted in recognition of their specialty over many years. Now they are told that they must surreoder these gains because the city can no longer afford to give them to those in less demanding positions.

If the present dispute brings anything to light, it must be the very unique position which the police officer occupies. He is expected to adhere to codes of conduct and standards of behavior which are neither required or expected of others while at the same time being told that It is irresponsible to expect special consideration for the exceptional demands made

Midtown 'Monsters'

To the Editor:

Jim Morgan of the Villard Houses Taskforce (letter Oct. 7) gives specific objectioos to the approval of the proposed hotel atop the Villard Houses. In a more general way, I am writing as a New Yorker who works in midtown. The coostruction of a 52-story building just behind St. Patrick's ought to be unthinkable. A similar monster sits on the cathedral's northern side, beoefiting only the newly oil rich and other super-rich tenants (who have no real loyalty to the city) and, of course, the real-estate people.

Much of midtown is already oppressively dark and airless, and to the ordinary New Yorker a place to flee. The areas around St. Patrick's and the Museum of Modern Art in the West 50's have been a notable exception.

The heralded "economic gains" of any new towers on these sites will prove to be illusory. The potential beneficiaries are a minuscule percentage of those who will be "affected" by these collossi. The City Planning Commission should sensitize itself to the voices of all New Yorkers. There's no more room for architectural monument-making.

number now is 30. It took a long time -12 long years in fact-for this 30 to turn up.

Thirty, in the newspaper business. means the end of the story - even death itself. But in this case, this 30 means the World Series has the old masters back again.

When the Yankees won late Thursday night, this put them in the World Series for the 30th time. No other team can come close. Even half close. As I watched the television pictures of the final struggle in the American League playoffs, I kept seeing a series of personal pictures-older, deeper, more exciting than today's television techniques can produce. Memory defies distance and eliminates time.

The first World Series I broadcast that the Yankees were in was in 1936 against Carl Hubbell and the New York Giants. Joe McCarthy was the Yankee manager, and this was bis

> Thursday night in Tallahassee, I could still see Red Ruffing, Lefty Gomez, Lou Gehrig, Joe DiMaggio, Joe Gordon, Frank Crosetti and Bill Dickey. Franklin D. Roosevelt himself came to see the last game in 1936, in which DiMaggio caught a long drive by Hank Lieber to end it. DiMag hit his first World Series home run in 1937, and Gehrig in that same series hit his last one.

game. So was Dizzy Dean at Chicago -Diz had a sore aim and a strong heart. Crosetti's home run beat him.

Then came the Yankees and the Dodgers in 1941. I can still see Freddy Fitzsimmons get hit on the kneecap hy a line drive off the hat of Marius Russo. The game was scoreless in the seventh inning, but after Fat Freddy had to leave the mound with a broken knee the Yankees won.

And the Yankees won the fourth game after Tommy Henrich struck out to end it and let Brooklyn get even in the Series. But Mickey Owen couldn't hold that third strike thrown by Hugh Casey. Henrich got on base. The Yankees rallied for four runs, the ball game and the Series itself the next day. Yes, I can still see poor Owen scrambling hack after the baseball in

The St. Louis Cardinals gave a wonderful show in 1942. First, the Cardinals caught and passed the Dodgers in a tremendous September drive. Then, after losing the first game in the Series, those young Redhirds caught the Yankees in four straight, with Terry Moore in center field catching every-the Yankees, I again saw Martin running in from second base in the seventh inning of the seventh game at Brooklyn in 1952. I saw Billy run from under his cap, and catch a short fly ball hit by Jackie Robinson. That broke the back of Brooklyn. (And it was the last series I broadcast nationally.)

So, this is 30 for this story. But it isn't the end at all. It's a continuation, a beginning, and it means we've got a World Series again,

How have we killed wilderness? Through bureaucracy and our camping

Honey, Drive On. Nothing Here.

By Jim Dale Vickery

Consider, for example, that America's most primitive, natural terrains are managed by the National Park Service, an agency of the Interior Department. As responsible custodians of our nation's lands, it enforces visitor regulations and is responsible for -camping facilities. Statistics make clear the necessity of such actions. In 1975, there were 238 million national park visits, a 10 percent increase over 1974. This year, that figure is expected to increase at least another 10 to 20 percent.

Heavy park use has forced the National Park Service to require "longterm reservations" for campground and back-country camping for at least three major national parks, while a permit system is also used for 36 other National Park Service areas.

Minnesota's Boundary Waters Canoe Area, managed by the United States

Forest Service, has even bad to implement a "User Distribution Program," which means most paddling campers must camp at specific campgrounds, and during beavily used times they must enter the Canoe Area at select entry points. And, as with many national parks, campfires are not allowed in the back country.

Now, these park regulations may be necessary, but they inevitably detract from a pure wilderness experience. One hundred years ago, no one would bave charged you to get into the woods, told you where to camp, or required you to have a stove that burns white gas. To further indicate bow bureaucracy can keep a man "out" of the wilderness, a ban on camping and plosive fire conditions, again puts a stop-and-go effect on any man's wilderness urge.

Wilderness obviously cannot be experienced from an iosulated motel room. Yet, modern camping vehicles are leaning toward just that. While a camper watches television in his vehicle, or cooks on his toted gas or electric range, the only wilderness experience be has is a change of scenery outside the vebicle's window.

I'm reminded of John Muir, Thomas Moran and other pioneer naturalists and outdoorsmen. They experienced wilderness on an elemental level. Even backpackers mimic their ruggedness. Early pioneers knew nothing of goosedown bags or stormproof tents. If forced, they would sleep on the ground, beneath a canoe, or hike armpit deep in snow. The elements sang and ripped alternately at their senses. Their physical experience of the wilderness was "exposed," something are losing through modern camping vehicles and superfluous equipment:

I am not so naïve as to think bureaucracy will loosen, or that people will prefer an outdoor bush to a makeshift latrine. It is rare for someone. or a nation, to reverse life styles. We don't like exposing naked skin to a crisp but toughening wind,

Is the wilderness dying? Suffice it to note that only 0.5 percent of the United States is preserved as wilderness, and that these same wilderness areas are perpetually under industrial glare and attack. In the long run, the only way we can say that the wilderness is not dying or, indeed, is not already dead, is by redefining our sense of wilderness. The old definition, then, will be its epitaph.

Jim Dale Vickery describes himself.as a "writer/backpacker/photographer."

Once Again the Powder Keg

ATHENS - The Balkan peninsula used to be regarded by statesmen as the world's powder keg, the area most likely to explode into armed conflict; and it is noteworthy that this century's three most dangerous international military confrontations prior to World War II began in that general area: For a time, following the Axis surrender in 1945 and the inception of the atomic age, people tended largely to forget the menacing, hair-trigger reputation of the Balkans. Other regions, from eastern Asia to southern Africa, competed in a new and broader stake race to disaster. But the Balkan

The angry Greek-Turkish quarrel continues to fester with mutual antipathy to Uncle Sam remaining the only factor on which both nations agree. Oddly enough, the two disputants, succumbing reluctantly to international pressure, bave accepted the idea of beginning two simultaneous negotiations to survey their argument.

What makes it odd is that these talks-one in Paris to examine differences over national air space and one in Berne to examine differences over the Aegean continental shelf-ere scheduled to start Nov. 2, Election Day in the United States. Considering the immense importance of Washington's attitude to both these bickering NATO allies and a general feeling among Greeks that Jimmy Carter couldn't help but be hetter than President Ford (plus Kissinger), it is unlikely the date is accidental.

Moreover, Athens keeps reminding Washington that it has yet to answer Greece's official demand for public affirmation that the United States did in fact reduce its aid to this country during the junta dictatorship and did in fact warn the colonels not to attempt a coup against Cyprus (which they did) and tipped off Cypriot President Makarlos it was coming.

For incomprehensible reasons Washington refuses to accede to this request, confirming presumably correct facts. The Greeks are also furious that the U.S. didn't caution the Turks against exploring for oil in contested waters-even after a U.N. Security Council resolution warned against provocations. Finally, Athens complains that Washington is helping Ankara to increase its air advantage in modern planes (F-4 Phantoms) while disfavoring Greece.

The general tenor of these arguments is known, but another unpleasantness is rapidly growing in another corner of the Balkans-Yugoslavia, where 84-year-old President Tito is ailing and Russia is widely assumed to be figuring how to regain political and ideological control of that independent-minded Marxist state.

The Yugoslavs have made it known at the highest level that they suspect our attitude. They fear either of two Washingtoo policies. First, they speculate that the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. have secretly concluded a tacit "new Yalta" redividing Europe into spheres of interest and allotting Yugoslavia to Moscow.

They reason that the much-discussed 'Sonnenfeldt doctrine" in which the State Department counselor urged an "organic" relationship between East Europe and Russia supports this suspicion. President Ford's recent bumbling statements on East Europe-Were living in America. If their suspicions of such a deal prove to be unfounded, the Yugoslavs wonder what kind of help they can expect from Washington should they have to fight for their survival. icuous among these celebrants were the sober, gen derly men, who were still clinging to the fradition ld Yankee fans who took pennants very much for and thought it bad taste to make much noise about short of a World Series victory.

"We're No. 1!" fans shouted jubilantly at the Stadium as Yankees won pennant

The new breed of Yankee fan was better illustrated by what was happening on the subways and elevated trains. On the D train of the IND, for instance, the conductor, at almost every station from 161st 5treet down to West Fourth Street, in Greenwich Village, kept announcing not merely the station, but also:

"We're No. 1." Each time he said this, the subway riders cheered—a reaction rarely, if ever, beheld in a New York subway, particularly a crowded one.

On the Woodlawn-Jerome Avenue line, which is elevated at Yankee Stadium, but goes underground as it heads south, men were comparing scorecards and rehashing plays, with such intensity that they apparently planned to be sure

these records were correct when passed along to future generations. There were moments of anxiety. Some affluent-looking men, usually well into middle-age, became worried about 12:30 A.M. when, for a short time, the gates to the elevated train were shut because the platform became too crowded.

At first they stood, with the aplomb of men waiting for the doorman to summon a cab. Then they began making quick forays into 161st Street, at Babe Ruth Plaza, trying to wave down anything that looked like a taxi.

Or there were the parents, separated from children, who had apparently had the foresight to arrange to meet at 161st 5treet and River Avenne if they were separated. As time passed the parents would become increasingly apprehensive, wondering if they should go to a policeman and ask for help.

Carmen Berra, the coach's wife, and Billy

Martin, the manager, leave for Cincinnati. When the child showed up there was the quick, happy embrace and departure for subway or elevated train.

One such boy turned np with his sweatshirt pulled over his head. His mother wondered about this. He said be'd been hit on the head.

"Take off the sweater," she insisted. "You may be bleed-

He removed the sweater. There did not seem to be much blood. But she and her busband were indignant because the boy said a policeman had hit him on the head.

There were some disagreements between the transit police and very exuberant fans. One of these fans tried to carry a large wooden plastic panel, painted Yankee blue that had obviously been part of Yankee Stadium when the deciding game with Kansas City began.

"It's mine," he said, when the policeman refused to let him take it through the turnstile. "The hell it is," said the officer, and wrestled it away from bim, handing it over to a transit employe to return to Such incidents did not dampen the enthosiasm of the celebrants in the street. By this time, their enthusiasm was so far beyond reason that they were expressing assurance that the Yankees would beat the favored Cincinnati Reds, the National League champions. Not only beat them, but take them four straight, they boasted.

"We're No. 1. We're No. 1," went the chant, the legs moving and the forefinger pointed in the air.

Business/Finance

Dismissing fears that the economic re-covery had stopped, a group of business and Government economists forecast continued growth toward the end of this year and into 1977 and 1978. The economists, in a report made to business leaders, said the "pause" in the recovery, which has prompted fears of a new recession and undermined stock prices, had been overestimated. (29:6.)

Industrial production failed to rise last month for the first time in 18 months, according to the Federal Reserve Board's index measuring the physical output of factories, mines and utilities. The agency, the Federal Power Commission, rejected a recommendation by its administrative judge that the matter be referred to the Justice Department. [29:4.]

Stock prices rose slightly in slower trading. The Dow Jones industrial average closed up 1.08 points at 937. [29:1-2.] Commodity prices fell again on the Chicago Board of Trade as a heavy drop in soybean futures influenced most other issues. [35:1-2.]

In his professional career, Dr. Berry left major impressions on many fields of medicine. One of his important contributions was the development of the "Berry plan" under which more than 42,000 physicians and surgeons were allowed to defer their obligated military service until completion of their specialty training.

Under the program, it was possible for the armed forces to meet medical staffing requirements in 1974 and 1975. The plan was proposed after Dr. Berry's nomination to the Federal post by President Eisenhower. #### Shanker Assails State

Albert Shanker, president of the United Federation of Teachers, and high-ranking officials of the A.F.L.-C.I.O. charged New York State with trying to destroy the teachers' union by stripping it of its right to dues checkoff. The checkoff action Wednesday by the state's Public Employment Relations Board was meant to punish the union for a five-day strike last fall that violated the Taylor Law forbidding strikes by public employees.

Mr. Shanker, in Washington, said the union stood to lese some $5 million in two years by having to collect individually toe annual dues from 60, 000 members at 900 schools in New York City. He said he expected as Added to $33 million in fines already assessed against the teachers, the loss of the checkoff "could be one of the largest financial penalties levied against any union in American labor history," Mr. Shanker said.

$105 Million Sought in Damage Action

By RONA CHERRY

When shoppers at supermarkets across the country ask store clerks to direct them to the soup section, hequestly all they bother to say is where do you keep Campbell's?"

With dozens of varieties ranging from turkey to tomato soup, and thanks to highly successful advertising campaigns, the Campbell Soup Company has for years reigned su-

But the giant soup maker has stirred up resentment from competing companies. And yesterday the R. J. Heinz Company, a major food processor, filed a complaint against it charging Campbell with attempting to monopolize the manufacture and sale of canaed soups sold in retail stores.

In the complaint, Heinz said it was seeking $105 million in damages and ssked the court for an injunction that would prohibit future alleged viola-tions of the Sherman Antibust Act. Campbell officials refused yesterday to comment on the antitrust ac-tion. "We haven't received or been served with papers," said a spokes-man for the company. "We think they have advertised and promoted their products in a geographmoted their products in a geographical and discriminatory manner."

Campbell now has about 85 percent of the canned soup market,

Failure to Deliver Gas to Pipeline Company Cited-Oil Concern Says It Will Appeal Decision

By EDWARD COWAN

WASHINGTON, Oct 15-The Federal Power Commission held today that the Gulf Oil Corporation owed millions of dollars to a major interstate natural-gas pipelioe company because Gulf failed to deliver as much gas as the commission found it was obliged to under its cootract. The ruling was the first of its kind.

Gulf challeoged the validity of the order and argued that in falmess it should not be required to make payments to the pipeline company because of extenuating circumstances. The commission indicated the sum involved could be as high as

The commission rejected the recommendation of its administrative judge, Raymond M. Zimmet, that the matter be referred to the Justice Department for Gulf, disputing the commission's find-iogs, said it would ask for a rehearing and if oecessary, would appeal to the Federal courts. It added that the decision was a reaction to "intense Congressional political pressure," an apparent reference to the House Commerce Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations headed hy Representative John E. Moss, Demo-crat of California.

Joint Determination Recommended The commission did not specify exactly how much money it believed Gulf should pay to the Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation, syaing the two companies should jointly determine the difference between Gulf's actual deliveries since 1973 and the volume it was obliged to

However, in a "hypothetical" calcula-tion that evideotly was the agency's best guess, it said Gulf might have to "refund" 89.6 million to Texas Eastern.

The term "refund" appeared to be a Bos mismorer in that the commission indicated it intended to penalize Gulf. It said Gulf must pay the difference between its contract prices with Texas Eastern and higher, prevailing market prices that the pipeline presumably had to pay—and pass along to its customers—to get gas

The "refunds" also would be passed along to the pipeline company's customers, mainly local gas utilities, and ultimately they presumably would cause some reduction in the bills of consumers. Directing Texas Eastern to file a refund plan, the commission opted that the pipe-line served 17 states from Texas to New The commission ordered Gulf to deliver 625 million cubc feet of gas a day to Texas Eastern starting on Dec. I, 1976.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Oct. 14-A leading group of private and Government econiamists today dismissed fears that the nat tion's economic recovery might be run-ning out of steam. Instead, they forecast that steady economic growth would rate aume toward the eod of the year and continue throughout 1977 and into 1978.

continue throughout 1977 and into 1978.

In a report to corporate leaders attended in the semiannual meeting of the Busiciness Council here, economists from 22 major American corporations, together, with four Government economists, said the "so-called pause" in the recovery durating the spring and summer months—a which had undermined Wall Street prices and aroused fears the economy might slips back into recession—had been "overesty mated"

As a result, they predicted that the recovery would continue throughout 1977, "and into 1978," with output as measured by the gross national product after allow ance for inflation, increasing by about 6.4 percent this year and 5 percent in 1977. These forecasts are the average of the accommists' individual predictions. the economists' individual predictions; But only one economist out of the 26, predicted real growth at under 5 percent next year.

The steady upturn predicted today is: expected to lower the unemployment rate-from 7.8 percent in September of this year to 6.5 perceot in the fourth quarter, of 1977-a drop of 1.3 percentage points over the coming year.

Short-Term Rates to Rise

However, while the economists do note believe inflation will reaccelerate, they warn that further reductions "will be dif-ficult to achieve." After rising about 53 percent this year, consumer prices are expected to climb a further 5.5 percent

Rise of 20 Percent Is Seen Now

However, although sales are still outpacing last year, the industry is now talking about an increase of 20 percent for the year instead of 30 to 35 percent. The Manufactured Housing Institute, the industry's principal trade association, now projects 1976 sales of about 264,000 units and 1977 shipments of 308,900 units.

While unit sales were up 20 percent for the first eight months of the years dollar volume was up 35 percent to $2,5 billion, a reflection of inflation; a continuaing trend of buyers opting for larger and fancier units, and effects of the new ederal standards.

These regulations establish minimum standards for construction and safety, and have added about $600 to $800 to the cost of typical mobile homes. They were implemented June 15 by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Industry executives say they suspect. some companies' problems in adapting to the regulations, and some dealers' reluctance to place orders during the transitional period may have contributed to the slow sales growth.

Nevertheless, a less vigorous economy is getting most of the blame.
For years, some economists, academicians and businessmen have talked about how the mass production techniques pigneered by the 100 or so mobile home manufacturers should be able to help solve the nation's housing needs.

In testimony before the House subcommittee commission officials said that the Gulf-Texas Eastern contract was the only one they had identified as imposing an absolute volumetric requirement. Other contracts qualified the producers' obligation, the officials testified.

i In backing away from a recommendation to the Justice Department, the comis mission said that if Gulf failed to make the required deliveries the commission would ask a Federal court "to enforce compliance."

Personal Finance: Proof of Value TRUST SUIT IS FILED A Growing Issue in Theft Policies

By RICHARD PHALON
The rising curve of crime in the suburhs became more than ao abstraction to one Bergen County counte recenlly when they came home to find some of their bureau drawers rifled and an easily portable chest of the silverware received as a wedding gift years ago missing.

Since the silver had been a gift, the couple had no receipts to establish its value. They did know the design and the manufacturer, of course, so the company setlied on the value of a replacement set-minus 25 percent for the use they had had of the old set over the years.

Basically, that is the way most theft policies pay off-replacement value at current market prices less an adjustment for what might be called depreci-

The incideot made the couple realize for the first time that there were many. other valuable items around the bouse on which—as with the sllver—they had no real proof of ownership or value.

A receipt or a canceled check, according to William Durkin, head of the Holran-Durkin Agency in Englewood, N. J., is the best line of defense in establishing a claim under the theft section of a bomeowner's or tenant's pol-

The policyholder should keep them on file along with an inventory of his belongings. Both are helpful in establishing how much coverage you should "Inventories are useful, but proof of purchase—a receipt of some kind—is the best thing of all, Mr. Durkin said. The insurance company wants to know when, where and bow much.

"We have people who send in lists without receipts and no proof of purchase, and so you wind up compromising on the settlement."

Many people are also unhappy to learn that settlements are based on policy limits they either never knew or have forgotten about. In most standard policies there is a $500 ceiling the company will pay on jewelry, furs and stamp collections. The limit on cash is usually $100, including coins that might have a numismatic worth far in excess of their face value.

The limits, of course, can be extended by buying at additional premium cost a floater tailored to such specific items as paintings or photographic equip-

Deductibles get cranked into the settlement equation too. On many standard homeowner policies —most include fire and liability coverage as well as theft -the customer has to absorb the first $50 of loss himself.

It is possible to save some money by opting for a higher deductible, and there are some cases -an apartment or home that might seem to be particularly inviting to thleves, for example, where companies will try to limit their

Proof of cownership -and proof of theft —are also aimed at limiting the compaoies' exposure. Signa of forced entry-a broken window or a jimmied lock -are usually taken as tangible enough indications of theft out insurers will often go along with a presumption of theft.

Mr. Durkin cites the experience of one client who was out shopping and came home to "find her fur coat missing from the hall closet." There was no aign of forcible entry but a "strong enough presumption of thert" for the company to pay off.

The presumptive line, however, is not hard and fast. "If you come home and atl your stuff is gone, then it's stolen," Mr. Durkin said. "But if it's a wallet or a ring and you haven't seen it for a couple of days, then it's misplaced end the company won't pay off."

In most areas the companies will pay off on items stolen away from home -a pair of binoculars taken at a race track or a fcotball game, for example. One notable exception, however, is the New York metropolitan area, where off-premises protection is often available only at a higher premium or on a floater basis. The standard limits on levelry and furs tend to be lower in New York, too.

By STACY V, JONES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15-The vice president in charge of real estate for the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation bas made an invention for the company in a distinctly different field. Samuel H. Hellenbrand was granted a patent this week for what is called a heart detective.

The heart detective, covered by Patent 3,985,121, is a portable instrument that can be placed against a person's chest to record sounds and compare them with prerecorded sounds representing known beart disorders. The device is oot claimed to be capable of definitive diagnosis but to indicate when the person has a disorder of a certain kind. A skilled diagnostician can then take over. The device can be used anywhere, including re-mote areas that do not bave access to heart specialists and expensive anal-vsis equipment.

As designed, the detective will be about the size of a tape recorder, with four directional microphones on one side, positioned according to the four classical areas of beart examination. The detected audio signals are fed to a comparator for checking against sounds recorded on tape, which may indicate any of 50 diseases.

Mr. Hellenbrand's invection has not been placed in production, pending the patent issuance. He is gratified that the company would encourage its real-estate specialist to develop something related primarily to medicine and electronics.

Some years ago I.T.T. did the electronic development of a mankin that is used in several medical schools to teach students about heart disorders.

In the 1976 fiscal year ending April 28, Heinz had domestic sales of $1.1 billion, of which about $60 million was from canned soup sold in retail

Mr. Wiley agreed yesterday that the company's domestic soup produc-tion was only a small percentage of its sales, "However, he said, "it represents a large amount of dollars." From fiscal 1966 to 1976, Heinz

France's largest oil company, Compagnie Française des Pétroles, has been so upset by its own experience in Indonesia that it has now decided to concentrate its new exploration and development expenditures entirely outside the third world.

Louis Deny, director general for operations, reports that henceforth the company will be investing only in Europe, North America and Australia and their Offshore areas.

In presenting the company's position, Mr. Deny cites political and financial "dangers" in developing countries and points out, as do other corporate leaders, that capital is in particularly tight supply these days.

What enraged the French oil giant was a change in Indonesian tax laws preventing investors from repatriating profits for 10 years. Inflation has had a disproportionately heavy impact on resource investments in the third world. The reason, as pointed out recently by Ian Macgregor, president of American Metal Climax, is the need for such things as transportation, facilities and water and power supplies.

"You are dealing with band-made, high-labor-cuntent investments and it is in the cost of labor, in capital equipment and construction that we bave the major inflationary bulge," Mr. Mac-

American companies.

The plan was to start with an open pit on a substantial ore body with grades just under 6 percent copper. The total capital costs had originally been figured at from $500 million to $600 million. When the project was shelved earlier this year, estimated costs had passed the $900 million mark, and $200 million had already been

Businessmen who like to run everything themselves need a Citibank account manager to help them run their finances.

Featured here is J. Newton Nash (on the left), a Citibank Vice President and specialist in meeting the financial needs of entrepreneurs. in addition to his 16 years in banking, Mr. Nash has worked for a leading Wall Street firm as a financial counsellor to corporate executives.

There are certain kinds of businessmen and women who generate an air of excitement. They're usually brimful of new ideas and involved in more than one enterprise. They're probably entrepreneurial types who like to "do it themselves." However, as dynamic as they may be, they cannot do everything themselves. Especially in the financial area. They just don't have the time.

What this kind of mind needs is the Citibank kind of account manager. The kind of personal account manager who brings with him a whole range of comprehensive banking services. He'll work with you and advise you on all phases of your financial needs: from structuring your borrowing to managing your personal investment program consisting with your taxes to working with your attorney on your trust and estate plans. From helping your business with short-term loans to arranging for long-term capital. And he'll gladly work with you, your lawyer, your accountant or anyone else you designate.

Backing up the judgments and recommendations of your Citibank account manager are some of the best brains in financial management: Citibank's bankers; security analysts; industry specialists; economists; trust and estate specialists; overseas experts. A whole battery of expertise that most businessmen don't have access to.

If your assets are $500,000 or more and if this kind of motivated personal account manager fits in with your way of thinking, mail the coupon. Or call J. Newton Nash, Vice President at (212) 559-2508. He may well help find ways for you to invest your money and your time more profitably.
